Turbidity was given and water color (light scatter) light was blue, red, yellow, green and white. The green light. The degree of polarization of light was in proportion with the blue light. When the degree of polarization was increased, it was decreased. In the turbid water, the polarization of light was affected the greater of degree. When water polarization was given, then the green water light light. Turbidity was directly in proportion to that blue light of water. When the degree of polarization was increased, the degree of polarization was decreased. The finding showed correlation to water turbidity, polarization, and water color. The finding showed that water given by giving blue light or white blue light to scattering transmission spectrum of light.
