Growing Gardens, Building Power Justin Sean Myers, 2022-10-14 Across the United States, marginalized communities are organizing to address social, economic and environmental inequities through building community food systems rooted in the principles of social justice. But how exactly are communities doing this work? Why are residents tackling these issues through food? What are their successes and what barriers are they encountering? This book dives into the heart of the food justice movement through an exploration of East New York Farms (ENYF), one of the oldest food justice organizations in Brooklyn and one that emerged from a bottom-up, asset-oriented development model. It details the food inequities the community faces and what produced them, how and why residents mobilized to turn vacant land into community gardens, and the struggles the organization has encountered as they worked to feed residents through urban farms and farmers markets. This book also discusses how, through the politics of food justice, ENYF has challenged the growth-oriented development politics of City Hall, opposed the neoliberalization of food politics, navigated the funding constraints of philanthropy and the welfare state, and opposed the entrance of a Walmart into their community. Through telling this story, Growing Gardens, Building Power offers insights into how the food justice movement is challenging the major structures and institutions that seek to curtail the transformative power of the food justice movement and its efforts to build a more just and sustainable world. Building sustainable city region food systems to increase resilience and cope with crises Francesco Orsini, Matteo Vittuari, Stefano Corsi, Dirk Wascher, Beatrice Walthall, Christian Bugge Henriksen, Candice Shoemaker, Myriam Paredes, 2023-07-26

Global Urban Agriculture Antoinette M G A WinklerPrins, 2017-05-24 There has been growing attention paid to urban agriculture worldwide because of its role in making cities more environmentally sustainable while also contributing to enhanced food access and social justice. This edited volume brings together current research and case studies concerning urban agriculture from both the Global North and the Global South. Its objective is to help bridge the long-standing divide between discussion of urban agriculture in the Global North and the Global South and to demonstrate that today there are greater areas of overlap than there are differences, both theoretically and substantively, and that research in either area can help inform research in the other. The book covers the nature of urban agriculture and how it supports livelihoods, provides ecosystem services, and community development. It also considers urban agriculture and social capital networks and agro-biodiversity conservation. Concepts such as sustainability, resilience, adaptation, and community, and the value of urban agriculture as a recreational resource, are explored. It also examines quite fundamentally why people farm in the city and how urban agriculture can contribute to more sustainable cities in both the Global North and the Global South.
