Rapport Du Surintendant de L'éducation Pour Le Bas-Canada Pour L'année 1856 Pierre J. O Chauveau, 1857 Section IX: Demography, 1913 The Place of Work in African Childhoods Bourdillon, Michael, Mutambwa, Georges M., 2015-10-19 This book is about how work enters and affects the lives of children in Africa taking for granted neither the traditional values surrounding children s work nor the international standards against it Many African societies nurture their children on the ingrained notion that children must work as part of their process of growing up Children participate in their families and communities through the work they do in the house and in whatever else their families do Such views are however antithetical to the dominant views in Europe and North America which see childhood as a time of freedom from responsibility and economic activity These views have become so popular with the elites in other countries to the extent that they now drive international campaigns against child labour and have been incorporated into what are now considered universal international standards and conventions This book was conceived within the framework of the CODESRIA tradition of taking African perspectives seriously and not allowing social research in Africa to become subservient to values from outside African scholars remain keenly aware of the need not to isolate themselves from developments in the wider world which could lead to stagnation This book through empirical observation of the lives of African children the work they do its place in their lives and what the children say about it proposes new perspectives towards a new understanding of this complex stage of human development Work is not simply about the right to income work provides identity and status in society and participation in the community People relate to one another through work Those who do not work are often without status and are at the periphery of society One of the major ways in which this book differs from most of the available literature is in the understanding it brings to the problem of child labour There are economic reasons why children may need an income of their own There is the demographic fact that the proportion of children to adults in low income countries is nearly double that in high income societies This book attempts to demonstrate that work is both necessary and beneficial in terms of a child s

Report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction of the Province of Quebec for the Year ... Québec (Province). Department of Public Instruction, 1890 Madame le Professeur Jo Burr Margadant, 2019-01-15 A collective biography of France's first generation of female secondary schoolteachers, this book examines the conflict between their public and private lives and places their new professional standing within the political culture of the Third Republic. Jo Burr Margadant charts the responses of women who attended the normal school of Sevres during the 1880s to their roles as teachers and subordinates in the public school system, their plight as outsiders in the social community and their gains toward educational reforms. These women emerge as pioneers struggling to forge careers in an elite profession which was separate and inferior to its male equivalent and also controlled by men. Margadant explains that the first women teacher in girls colleges and lycées were expected to project an intellectually assertive presence in the classroom while maintaining a maternal solicitude toward students and a modest self-effacing style with superiors. Many who succeeded progressed to administrative jobs and in some cases filled official posts left vacant by men during the First World War. The author shows how these achievements led to the transformations of girls' secondary schools into replicas of those for boys and to equal treatment for women and men in the teaching profession. Jo Burr Margadant is Lecturer in History at Santa Clara University.
