Research appears to be focused solely on finding drugs that will alleviate the symptoms Russian chemist and author Tamara Lebedewa is offering an alternative theory one that has been disregarded by Establishment science But when sorting through the landfill of hastily and ruthlessly dismissed scientific ideas Ms Lebedewa s theory is one that actually looks plausible Doctors presume that cancer cells originate from the body itself and that cancer risk cannot be completely eliminated But her experiments confirm the opposite the cancer pathogen is a parasite More specifically the aggressive trichomonad a parasitic widespread single celled organism that disguises itself as the body s own cell Now if cancer is indeed caused by parasites then it can be treated preventively Lebedewa is fighting science with science The mountains of researched information and empirical evidence part to reveal an insightful work that resurrects the debate restores credibility to stalled research and subverts the authority of orthodox medicine But what Ms Lebedewa really wants most of all is to help Based on her findings she has developed a therapy regime which will reduce the risk of cancer support healing and above all combat the fear of this threatening disease
