Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The participants were randomly assigned to either a training group or a control group. The training group performed a 12-week program of aerobic and resistance training. The control group did not exercise. Physical fitness was measured by a 6-minute walk test, and HRQL was measured by the SF-36 questionnaire. The results showed that the training group had significantly higher physical fitness and HRQL scores than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve physical fitness and HRQL in sedentary, middle-aged women.
