Becoming Scientists Good science starts with a question perhaps from the teacher at the start of a science unit or from the children as they wonder what makes a toy car move how food decomposes or why leaves change color Using inquiry science children discover answers to their questions in the same way that scientists do they design experiments make predictions observe and describe offer and test explanations and share their conjectures with others In essence they construct their own understanding of how the world works through experimentation reflection and discussion Look into real classrooms where teachers practice inquiry science and engage students in the science and engineering practices outlined in the Next Generation Science Standards Rusty Bresser and Sharon Fargason show teachers how to do the following Build on students varied experiences background knowledge and readiness Respond to the needs of students with varying levels of English language proficiency Manage a diverse classroom during inquiry science exploration Facilitate science discussions Deepen their own science content knowledge As the authors state Inquiry science has little to do with textbooks and lectures and everything to do with our inherent need as a species to learn about and reflect on the world around us Join your students on a journey of discovery as you explore your world via inquiry
