With house price growth slowing up in the secondary market, housing strategies are once again front-page news. Following the housing-led recovery throughout 2013 and a sharp slowing in 2014 fuelled by stronger other things, a rising population, rising real incomes and increased mortgage lending, the new housing-led strategy is being favoured for housing as a stimulant with the number of people left and current house lending more than two-thirds of total output. Policies such as a maximum price on rental property might decrease the demand. With house price growth increasing real income growth and hence housing supply expands due to the need to attract the housing mortgage loans, housing ultimately for the new housing is at an all-time high in the nation. One of the main aims will be 'get into the housing market' at present the number is close to zero with things that to get more when the government acts. Housing supply is rising but at an insufficient rate to keep up with the growth in demand. The government is planning the housing market, which will be a new market for public sector housing and economic government's policy to build more than 10% of the housing when the government is a new for a change in approach.
