New Funding Model to Streamline University Education - PS

The Department of Education (DepEd) has announced a new funding model for higher education institutions, aimed at streamlining university education. The new model, known as the Performance-Based Funding (PBF) system, will allow universities to receive funding based on their performance in various areas, including student outcomes, research, and community service. This system is expected to encourage universities to improve their quality of education and to focus on the needs of their students. The DepEd Secretary, Armin Luistro, stated that the PBF system is a significant step towards ensuring that higher education institutions are accountable for the quality of their education and that they are providing the best possible learning experience for their students.
