Origin and Evolution of Precambrian High-grade Gneiss Terranes, with Special Emphasis on the Limpopo Complex of Southern Africa D. D. Van Reenen, 2011-01-01      Papers and Abstracts of Addresses J. E. Glover, 1971      Papers, 1914

Geological Society of America Bulletin Geological Society of America, 1972 Vols 1-44 include Proceedings of the annual meeting 1889-1933 later published separately      The Proceedings of a Seminar Pertaining to the Limpopo Mobile Belt I. F. Ermanovics, R. M. Key, G. McEwen, 1977      A Tale of Two Cratons A. G. Jones, R. W. Carlson, H. S. Grütter, 2004-03-11 Given the established nature of geoscientific knowledge of the Kaapvaal craton compared to the Slave craton and given the exciting new interdisciplinary results coming from the Kaapvaal Project and from Slave craton studies scientists working on both cratons were brought together in a workshop to compare and contrast the nature of these two cratons. Of the 54 papers presented at the workshop 24 are included in this volume. There are clearly major similarities and differences between these two Archean cratons. The crust of both was predominantly formed in the Mesoarchean. Both contain crustal sections consisting of terranes of different ages welded together by Archean accretionary events. Both crustal sections are underlain by lithospheric mantle sections consisting of peridotites that experienced extensive partial melt extraction between 2.9 Ga and 3.2 Ga but this is where the similarities between the cratons end. One of the most striking differences between the Slave and Kaapvaal cratons is the apparent seismic homogeneity of the Kaapvaal craton's SCLM whereas the Slave craton is seismically layered. The seismic layering in the centre of the craton correlates laterally and with depth with electrical layering and geochemical layering. Taken together these differences suggest that SCLM formation was different for the two cratons implying that the search for a single causative formation process is bound to fail. Reprinted from the journal Lithos Volume 71 numbers 2-4      Human Resources Development Review 2008 Andre Kraak, Karen Press, 2008. Through 25 chapters authored by some of the leading researchers in the field the Human Resources Development Review 2008 provides an extensive overview of the contextual factors driving human resources development in South Africa. A key theme throughout the volume is the importance of a multi-faceted skills development strategy operating at three levels. The first entails high skills policies aimed at expanding export-oriented manufacturing production and services provision particularly in new globally competitive niche areas. The second relates to the economy's ongoing need for intermediate skills as is evident in the shortage of skilled artisans and technologists. Finally the provision of basic entry level skills is important in view of the urgent need for large scale job creation schemes triggered by public sector initiatives to ameliorate high levels of unemployment and despondency especially amongst the youth      Sessional Papers British Columbia, 1908
