UNIT 3: CULTURAL PATTERNS AND PROCESSES

Cultural landscapes are combinations of physical features, agricultural and industrial practices, religious and linguistic characteristics, evidence of recurrent occupations, and other expressions of culture (including traditional and postmodern architecture and land use patterns).

Attitudes toward ethnicity and gender, including the role of women in the workplace, ethnic neighborhoods, and religious communities and trends help shape the use of space in a given way.

- Cultural landscapes patterns
 - Built environment
 - Evidence of recurrent human activities and cultural movement
 - The built environment as the physical manifestation of the cultural process
- Expressions of culture in the built environment
 - Physical features, including features that subtly influence the urban design
 - Structures and related spaces
 - Religious buildings and centers of social, religious, and/or political activity
 - Cultural centers in urban areas, including museums, libraries, and theaters
 - Buildings, streets, and other features that reflect cultural identity and values
- Ethnic neighborhoods, trends that suggest that an area can be associated with different groups of people, and that groups of people tend to reside in the same type of place, often the same cultural landscape

Language, ethnicity and identity contribute to a sense of place, which is the global cultural landscape.

Language, ethnicity and religion are factors creating centrifugal and centripetal forces.

- Centrifugal forces that pull people apart
 - Ethnic, linguistic, religious, and cultural differences
 - Centrifugal forces that pull people together
 - Ethnic, linguistic, religious, and cultural similarities
 - Religion can be a powerful agent

Language	Religion	Ethnicity
Language	Religion	Ethnicity
• Spanish in Spain, Central America, and Latin America	• Catholicism in Spain, Central America, and Latin America	• Spanish in Spain, Central America, and Latin America
• English in the United Kingdom, the United States, and other English-speaking countries	• Christianity in the United Kingdom, the United States, and other English-speaking countries	• English in the United Kingdom, the United States, and other English-speaking countries
• Hindi in India	• Hinduism in India	• Indian in India
• Arabic in the Middle East	• Islam in the Middle East	• Arab in the Middle East

Religion and expression - including religious, geographical, and ethnic expression - are types of differences.

Differences among people in a culture include social, economic, and political differences.

- Economic differences: people in a culture have different levels of wealth and income
- Political differences: people in a culture have different levels of power and influence
- Social differences: people in a culture have different levels of status and prestige
- Cultural differences: people in a culture have different levels of knowledge and skills
- Ethnic differences: people in a culture have different levels of identity and belonging

Interactions between and among cultural traits and larger global forces can lead to new forms of cultural expression, for example, globalization and hybridization.

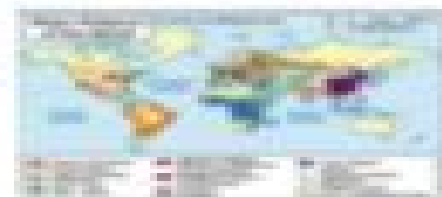

- Globalization: the process by which economic, cultural, and other aspects of different cultures are integrated into a single system
- Hybridization: the process by which different cultures are combined to create a new culture

Globalization, hybridization and trade helped to shape patterns and practices of culture.

- Globalization and hybridization of languages: the process by which different languages are combined to create a new language
- Globalization and hybridization of religions: the process by which different religions are combined to create a new religion
- Globalization and hybridization of cultures: the process by which different cultures are combined to create a new culture

- Globalization and hybridization of languages: the process by which different languages are combined to create a new language
- Globalization and hybridization of religions: the process by which different religions are combined to create a new religion
- Globalization and hybridization of cultures: the process by which different cultures are combined to create a new culture
