

New York: The City of My Dreams

5 pages | 1230 words

Everyone has a place that helps bring clarity to their life, and for me that place is New York City. Someone may ask, what is so great about New York City? What draws all these people from around the world to this one spot? I believe there is something special, or dare I say magical, about this city. For me, New York City has impacted how I think about diversity, where things originate, and how important it is to feel like you belong. On my first trip to NYC, I flew into LaGuardia airport. From the sky I was able to see how this city physically stood apart. Upon leaving for my trip to NYC, I was unsure of what to expect because it had always been a dream of mine to visit this city that sits on an island. It's crazy to think that according to Wikipedia this place is only "13.4 miles in length, and 2.3 miles in width". Most people don't realize that most of the famous places they have seen on TV sit on this island called Manhattan. It's also important to remember that just as the island is small, it is also very diverse. I had heard and read stories about the people of New York and the East Coast. The stories were of how rude they are, how they fight non-New Yorkers, and so on and so forth. Let me tell you, that is not the experience that I had. I believe you must take the people of NYC for who they are. They are a fast-paced society, and they don't want you to get in their way. If you treat them with respect, then they will treat you with the same respect just as you would hope. According to Wikipedia's "Manhattan" article, there are a lot of people that call New York City home, well "8,622,698 to be exact per the latest poll from 2017". The number increases if you add the total number of tourists that visit throughout the year. "At the end of 2017, Wikipedia states that a total of 62.8 million tourists visited NYC, with 13.1 million being international tourists". This place has a special energy and a unique heartbeat that draw people here. The island of Manhattan is made up of "56 different neighborhoods" that are all eccentric. From Chinatown, Little Italy, SoHo, Times Square, Hell's Kitchen, and the Financial District, every one of these neighborhoods offers something unique. I had my first New York style pizza slice at John's Pizza of Times Square, and it was delicious. In Chinatown, I had dumplings, boba drinks, and a cone crepe filled with nutella, strawberries, and bananas. On the Upper West Side, there is a little place called Jacob's Pickles that has become the highlight of each trip and holds a special place in my heart. They serve a dish that consists of two fluffy pancakes, three chicken strips, syrup, and they top it off with bacon crumbles. This dish has become my all-time favorite meal to eat while in NYC, because it always brings me back to my first time...

Literature and the Glocal City Ana María Fraile-Marcos, 2014-07-17 The modern city is a space that can simultaneously represent the principles of its homeland alongside its own unique blend of the cultures that intermingle within its city limits This book makes an intervention in

Canadian literary criticism by foregrounding both globalism which is increasingly perceived as the state of the art literary paradigm and the city These are two significant axes of contemporary culture and identity that were previously disregarded by a critical tradition built around the importance of space and place in Canadian writing Yet as relevant as the turn to the city and to globalism may be this collection s most notable contribution lies in linking the notion of glocality that is the intermeshing of local and global forces to representations of subjectivity in the material and figurative space of the Canadian city Dealing with oppositional discourses as multiculturalism postcolonialism feminism diaspora and environmentalism this book is an essential reference for any scholar with an interest in these areas      Prize Essay and Lectures, Delivered
