Java 9 for Programmers, Fourth Edition Paul Deitel. Harvey Deitel, 2017 ECOOP 2005 - Object-Oriented Programming Andrew Black, 2005-07-18 The 19th Annual Meeting of the European Conference on Object Oriented Programming ECOOP 2005 took place during the last week of July in Glasgow Scotland UK This volume includes the refereed technical papers presented at the conference and two invited papers It is traditional to preface a volume of proceedings such as this with a note that emphasizes the importance of the conference in its respective field Although such self evaluations should always be taken with a large grain of salt ECOOP is undisputedly the pre eminent conference on object orientation outside of the United States In its turn object orientation is today's principal technology not only for programming but also for design analysis and specification of software systems As a consequence ECOOP has expanded far beyond its roots in programming to encompass all of these areas of research which is why ECOOP has remained such an interesting conference But ECOOP is more than an interesting conference It is the nucleus of a technical and academic community a community whose goals are the creation and dissemination of new knowledge Chance meetings at ECOOP have helped to spawn collaborations that span the boundaries of our many subdisciplines bring together researchers and practitioners cross cultures and reach from one side of the world to the other The ubiquity of fast electronic communication has made maintaining these collaborations easier than we would have believed possible only a dozen years ago But the role of conferences like ECOOP in establishing collaborations has not diminished Java Look and Feel Hairi bin wireless networks Proceedings of the 9th Workshop on Aspects, Components, and Patterns for Infrastructure Software (ACP4IS '10) Bram Adams, Michael Haupt, Daniel Lohmann, 2010 Aspect oriented programming component models and design patterns are modern and actively evolving techniques for improving the modularization of complex software. In particular, these techniques hold great promise for the development of systems infrastructure software, e.g., application servers, middleware, virtual machines, compilers, operating systems, and other software that provides general services for higher level applications. The developers of infrastructure software are faced with increasing demands from application programmers needing higher level support for application development. Meeting these demands requires careful use of software modularization techniques since infrastructural concerns are notoriously hard to modularize. Aspects, components, and patterns provide very different means to deal with infrastructure software, but despite their differences, they have much in common. For instance, component models try to free the developer from the need to deal directly with services like security or transactions. These are primary examples of crosscutting concerns, and modularizing such concerns are the main target of aspect oriented languages. Similarly, design patterns like Visitor and Interceptor facilitate the clean modularization of otherwise tangled concerns. Building on the ACP4IS meetings at AOSD 2002, 2009, this workshop aims to provide a highly interactive forum for researchers and developers to discuss the application of and relationships between aspects, components, and patterns within modern infrastructure software. The goal is to put aspects, components, and patterns into a common reference frame and to build connections between the software engineering and systems communities.

Language Processing and Grammars Brian Nolan, Carlos Periñán-Pascual, 2014-04-15 There is a growing awareness of the significance and value that modelling using information technology can bring to the functionally oriented linguistic enterprise. This encompasses a spectrum of areas as diverse as concept modelling, language processing, and grammar modelling, conversational agents, and the visualisation of complex linguistic information in a functional linguistic perspective. This edited volume offers a collection of papers dealing with different aspects of computational modelling of language and grammars within a functional perspective at both the theoretical and application levels. As a result, this volume represents the first instance of contemporary functionally oriented computational treatments of a variety of important language and linguistic issues. This book presents current research on functionally oriented computational models of grammar, language processing, and linguistics concerned with a broadly functional computational linguistics that also contributes to our understanding of languages within a functional and cognitive linguistic computational research agenda.
