Rader,Victoria E.M. Cain,2014-10-03 Rich with archival detail and compelling characters Life on Display uses the history of biological exhibitions to analyze museums shifting roles in twentieth century American science and society Karen A Rader and Victoria E M Cain chronicle profound changes in these exhibitions and the institutions that housed them between 1910 and 1990 ultimately offering new perspectives on the history of museums science and science education Rader and Cain explain why science and natural history museums began to welcome new audiences between the 1900s and the 1920s and chronicle the turmoil that resulted from the introduction of new kinds of biological displays They describe how these displays of life changed dramatically once again in the 1930s and 1940s as museums negotiated changing often conflicting interests of scientists educators and visitors The authors then reveal how museum staffs facing intense public and scientific scrutiny experimented with wildly different definitions of life science and life science education from the 1950s through the 1980s The book concludes with a discussion of the influence that corporate sponsorship and blockbuster economics wielded over science and natural history museums in the century s last decades A vivid entertaining study of the ways science and natural history museums shaped and were shaped by understandings of science and public education in the twentieth century United States Life on Display will appeal to historians sociologists and ethnographers of American science and culture as well as museum practitioners and general readers Philippine Journal of Education ,1966 Keepers of the Animals Michael J. Caduto,Joseph Bruchac,1997 Using stories to show the importance of wildlife in Native American traditions this book gives parents and teachers an exciting way to teach children about animals Teaching and Advocacy Denny Taylor,Debbie Coughlin,Joanna Marasco,1997 What happens to children who live on the edge Children in families that are trying to make it somehow someway anyway they can children with disabilities who speak other languages who are told they are different and who know they don t fit What happens to adolescents who are kicked out of regular high school who end up under the control of the social welfare system who belong to gangs whose friends are killed by gunfire How can they articulate their own positions and needs What kinds of literacy do they require so that society will recognize them Who is their advocate Because literacy can be used to enable or disable those children marginalized by society must be literate to survive and teachers are often their only advocates But teachers often stand alone when they advocate For most teachers there are no guidelines available on teaching and advocacy and we rarely talk about the role that literacy plays in providing opportunities for teachers to work as advocates Exploring how literacy learning is enabled and disabled offers that opportunity The teacher researchers in this book use written texts to uncover the hidden assumptions that shape our perceptions about people's positions in society They focus on how language is done what we do with it how we define ourselves in print how students are defined often reinvented in obscure documents that control their lives Teaching and Advocacy encourages teachers to stand beside their students to expose the hidden assumptions in official documents to develop alternative explanations and above all to advocate Following each chapter Denny Taylor's interview with the author reveals a rare commitment to children and to advocacy and demonstrates the involvement implicit in qualitative research

Lightning in the Andes and Mesoamerica John E. Staller, Brian Stross, 2013-02-05 Lightning has evoked a numinous response as well as powerful timeless references and symbols among ancient religions throughout the world Thunder and lightning have also taken on various symbolic manifestations some representing primary deities as in the case of Zeus and Jupiter in the Greco-Roman tradition and Thor in Norse myth Similarly lightning veneration played an important role to the ancient civilizations of Mesoamerica and Andean South America Lightning veneration and the religious cults and their associated rituals represent to varying degrees a worship of nature and the forces that shape the natural world The inter-relatedness of the cultural and natural environment is related to what may be called a widespread cultural perception of the natural world as sacred a kind of mythic landscape

Comparative analysis of the Andes and Mesoamerica has been a recurring theme recently in part because two of the areas of high civilization in the Americas have much in common despite substantial ecological differences and in part because there is some evidence of varying quality that some people had migrated from one area to the other Lightning in the Andes and Mesoamerica is the first ever study to explore the symbolic elements surrounding lightning in their associated Pre Columbian religious ideologies Moreover it extends its examination to contemporary culture to reveal how cultural perceptions of the sacred their symbolic representations and ritual practices and architectural representations in the landscape were conjoined in the ancient past Ethnographic accounts and ethnohistoric documents provide insights through first hand accounts that broaden our understanding of levels of syncretism since the European contact The interdisciplinary research presented herein also provides a basis for tracing back Pre Columbian manifestations of lightning its associated religious beliefs and ritual practices as well as its mythological symbolic iconographic and architectural representations to earlier civilizations This unique study will be of great interest to scholars of Pre Columbian South and Mesoamerica and will stimulate future comparative studies by archaeologists and anthropologists

Making Representations Moira G. Simpson, 2012-12-06 Drawing upon material from Britain Canada the United States Australia and New Zealand Making Representations explores the ways in which museums and anthropologists are responding to pressures in the field by developing new policies and practices and forging new relationships with communities Simpson examines the increasing number of museums and cultural centres being established by indigenous and immigrant communities as they take control of the interpretive process and challenge the traditional role of the museum Museum studies students and museum professionals will all find this a stimulating and valuable read
