Starting an Adventurer Club in your church may not seem a simple task, but with a little guidance and good advice, it doesn't have to be a real headache, either. Before you start pulling your hair, start with these guidelines designed to help you get things going and limit your stress level:

Seek Counsel from the conference Adventurer Specialist or Children's Ministries Director, whichever is responsible for guiding the clubs in your conference.

Evaluate the Level of Interest and Support Levels by taking the time to contact and talk with parents of Adventurer age children.

Present Your Plan to the church board. You need their authorization to organize an Adventurer Club. The conference Adventurer specialist should be invited to meet with the board. It is important that parents of Adventurer-age children have already expressed support for your plan.

Inform the Congregation during the worship service. A conference Adventurer coordinator is qualified by experience to speak in behalf of the Adventurer Club and the needs of the children, so invite the coordinator to make a presentation to the entire church, preferably during the worship hour.

Call a Special Meeting to get organized. Invite all Master Guides, parents of Adventurer-age children, teachers in Primary Sabbath School, and others interested in working with children. Make an appeal for volunteers to help in the Adventurer Club, and circulate an informal sign-up sheet so they can tell you where their special interests lie.

Train Staff. Request that the conference Adventurer specialist teach a staff training course to all club leadership personnel.

Elect Officers, such as director and associate directors. The church board may be familiar with those best qualified to lead in these positions and recommend them to the church.

Create an Adventurer Club Executive Committee, comprised of the Adventurer Club leadership, pastor, Primary Sabbath School leader, teachers of the involved church school grades, and an Adventurer mother and father. The Adventurer director chairs the committee, which sets major policies for the operation, goals and objectives of the club, and selects counselors and instructors.

Build the Program with long-range planning. Break the year's program into three or four segments with distinct activities and objectives. Then each meeting should be planned in detail weeks in advance. Be prepared.

Hold a Guest Program as a general activity two to three weeks before enrollment. Each Adventurer
