Understanding the Antioxidant Controversy Paul E. Milbury,Alice C. Richer,2007-11-30 Current scientific evidence suggests that free radicals unstable by products produced by normal human metabolic processes damage the body resulting in chronic health disorders and degenerative changes associated with aging Nutritional products on the market today promise antioxidants can reduce possibly even reverse damage caused by these free radicals If true that would mean less chronic disease and premature aging at the very least But are antioxidants indeed the new Fountain of Youth Media reports extol antioxidants as the solution to disease and aging and some studies do seem to back up those reports Yet the studies that have been completed are far from conclusive and taking antioxidant supplements can be dangerous This book explores current thinking analyzes studies and answers the questions What are antioxidants What do they do Is there any real benefit to taking them as supplements Are there real dangers for me Media report preliminary and conflicting scientific studies on antioxidants notwithstanding the fact that the final analysis about their effectiveness and safety is incomplete The result is increasing sales of dietary supplements and so called functional foods or nutraceuticals that are not regulated nor proven and a possible public safety crisis from hypersupplementation Milbury and Richer bring us up to date

systems the development analysis and validation of integrative computational models based directly on experimental data is necessary to achieve this understanding This approach known as systems biology integrates computational and experimental approaches through iterative development of mathematical models and experimental validation and testing The combination of these approaches allows for a mechanistic understanding of the function of complex biological systems in health and their dysfunction in disease The National Heart Lung and Blood Institute NHLBI has recognized the importance of the systems biology approach for understanding normal physiology and perturbations associated with heart lung blood and sleep diseases and disorders In 2006 NHLBI announced the Exploratory Program in Systems Biology followed in 2010 by the NHLBI Systems Biology Collaborations The goal of these programs is to support collaborative teams of investigators in using experimental and computational strategies to integrate the component parts of biological networks and pathways into computational models that are based firmly on and validated using experimental data These validated models are then applied to gain insights into the mechanisms of altered system function in disease to generate novel hypotheses regarding these mechanisms that can be tested experimentally and to then use the results of experiments to refine the models The purpose of this Research Topic is to present the range of innovative new approaches being developed by investigators working in areas of systems biology that couple experimental and modeling studies to understand the cause and possible treatment of heart lung blood and sleep diseases and disorders This Research Topic will be of great interest to the cardiovascular research community as well as to the general community of systems biologists
