negative effect of the ageing population is that more individuals are experiencing cognitive decline and some form of neurodegenerative disease With the number of people experiencing dementia likely to double in the next 20 years this change in society presents one of greatest challenges facing public health personnel in the 21st century The aim of this volume is to describe research that is in progress and the major findings that have been obtained in the scientific study of dementia The chapters in the first section of the book focus upon early signs of dementia and consider several approaches to finding early cognitive signs and biological markers of dementia The second section considers whether dementia is inevitable for people who become very old and features chapters on risk factors and proactive influences cognitive reserve and intervention Each chapter in the final section describes phenomena which are related to differences in function between memory systems including anterograde memory in fronto temporal dementia and the role semantic memory and semantic cognition may play in developing an understanding of the development of the degenerative processes in dementia With contributions from world class researchers in this area the volume offers a concise overview of key findings in recent research on dementia and memory It will be of great interest to researchers and advanced students of cognitive psychology and to those working in related fields such as gerontology rehabilitation sciences and allied health The Practical Critical Educator Karyn Cooper, Robert E. White, 2006-06-10 I am delighted to have the opportunity to write this foreword for Karyn Cooper's and Robert White's splendid and compelling edited text on The Practical Critical Educator Critical practice in education is grounded in two bodies of thought and action critical theory and critical pedagogy Drawing on classical Marxism and its articulation of how oppression and injustice arose through capitalism's economic exploitation of labour critical theories of society took a cultural turn in the writings of Adorno and Horkheimer European Jewish refugees who fled to America where they articulated how the power relations and oppressive forces of capitalism expressed themselves in the alienating symbolic forces of culture music and art When booming demographics and an economic surplus fuelled the student movement of the late 60s and into the 70s in many Western nations new forms of cultural Marxism were added to this body of critical theory extending beside but also far beyond the classical Marxist preoccupations with economic equalities of social class British writers such as the articulate and elegant cultural Marxist Raymond Williams revived and refined the lost work of Italian Marxist Antonio Gramsci from the 1920s and his concern with the influence of what he called hegemony the force through which ruling classes could maintain existing structures of domination by defining through language media and culture what was normal natural true beautiful and defensible and what was eccentric unreasonable or unworthy of serious consideration
