An Age of Accountability John L. Rury, 2023-10-13 An Age of Accountability highlights the role of test-based accountability as a policy framework in American education from 1970 to 2020 For more than half a century the quest to hold schools and educators accountable for academic achievement has relied almost exclusively on standardized assessment The theory of change embedded in almost all test-based accountability programs held that assessment with stipulated consequences could lead to major improvements in schools This was accomplished politically by proclaiming lofty goals of attaining universal proficiency and closing achievement gaps which repeatedly failed to materialize But even after very clear disappointments no other policy framework has emerged to challenge its hegemony The American public today has little confidence in institutions to improve the quality of goods and services they provide especially in the public sector As a consequence many Americans continue to believe that accountability remains a vital necessity even if educators and policy scholars disagree

The Restructuring of British Energy Great Britain: National Audit Office,2006-03-17 British Energy was privatised in 1996 In 2002 the price of electricity fell and on 5 September 2002 the Company applied to the Department of Trade and Industry the Department for financial assistance In November 2002 the Department agreed to provide financial assistance with the proviso that the Company s financial arrangements would be restructured This report deals with the financial aid that the Department gave to British Energy and the terms of the restructuring of British Energy The Department decided to intervene because in its assessment unplanned closures of British Energy s nuclear power stations would have had safety implications and put electricity supplies at risk The Department took on responsibility for a large proportion of the company s liabilities to be funded through a Nuclear Liabilities Fund though there was no up to date estimate of those liabilities These estimates are to be updated every five years now In February 2006 British Energy estimated liabilities at 5 287 million The restructuring mechanism is for a cash sweep so that the company contributes more to the Fund when it is doing well In the 12 months following completion of restructuring in January 2005 the wholesale electricity price rose sharply and the Company s share price more than doubled The electricity market has however proved to be particularly volatile over recent years The Nuclear Liabilities Fund is left particularly exposed to British Energy s financial and operational performance Day to day responsibility for monitoring various aspects of the Company s performance currently lies with a number of teams within the Department There remains a real risk that information learned by the different teams is not shared quickly and evaluated and that insufficient staff resources are committed to safeguarding the taxpayer s significant interest To assist its management of the taxpayer s interest the Department will need to prepare sufficiently comprehensive contingency plans to enable it to act quickly under the range of scenarios that might arise
