

Improving the probability of policy acceptance and implementation: Lessons from the Gauteng Department of Education

Executive summary

The Gauteng Department of Education (GDE) identified human, systemic and structural challenges that constrained its ability to excel in delivering on its mandate (Department of Basic Education 2013; Chinsamy 2002; Roberts 2001). One of the strategies for addressing these challenges was the introduction of a new district realignment policy (Matthew Goniwe 2014), with its concomitant paradigm shift from a predominantly monitoring mode to a predominantly supportive one. In line with this policy, the GDE resolved to devote 80% of its work towards support of schools and 20% towards monitoring of compliance requirements.

The implementation of this policy suffered some setbacks (HSRC 2015). These include: emanation of unfavourable perceptions, as the district officials felt they had been reduced from specialists to generalists; high staff turnover; weak support; poor communication and planning; and lack of will to support quality learning and teaching.

Introduction and background

A lesson drawn from the 1990s and early 2000s with respect to school improvement is that the provincial education departments were too far removed from local schools, hence the decision to realign districts for the purposes of decentralisation and effective policy implementation (Chinsamy 2002; Roberts 2001; see also the National Education Policy Act [No. 27 of 1996]). In implementing the new district realignment policy, the GDE seems to have experienced change-management challenges. The new changes did not sit well with some officials, as there was confusion about roles, responsibilities, accountability, and outcomes of the officials' intervention in schools. The Matthew Goniwe School of Leadership and Governance (MGS LG) serves as the GDE's capacity-building arm for School Governing Bodies, teachers, learner-leaders, parents with children in Gauteng public schools,
