

Simon Armitage
(b. 1963)

Remains

- 1 On another occasion, we get sent out to tackle looters raiding a bank. And one of them legs it up the road, probably armed, possibly not.
- 5 Well myself and somebody else and somebody else are all of the same mind, so all three of us open fire. Three of a kind all letting fly, and I swear
- I see every round as it rips through his life - I see broad daylight on the other side. So we've hit this looter a dozen times and he's there on the ground, sort of inside out, pain itself, the image of agony. One of my mates goes by and tosses his guts back into his body. Then he's carted off in the back of a lorry.
- 15 End of story, except not really. His blood-shadow stays on the street, and out on patrol I walk right over it week after week.
- 20 Then I'm home on leave. But I blink the sounds lie of it and the roller is listening in colloquial expression - makes it sound like an ordinary anecdote that's bold then which contrasts strongly with the dramatic action that follows repetition sounds like he's even for the reader to know it wasn't just him - hints that he feels guilty this comes as a surprise the sudden violence doesn't fit with the casual tone poetic voice switches to - this is now more personal this violent metaphor contrasts shockingly with the colloquial style of the first two stanzas this is quite a grotesque exaggerated image - he says he can see through the bullet holes in the man's body this is an almost child description of the man's body - the speaker seems unable to process it in an adult way two very casual, cold actions - no respect for the dead man. "tosses" and "carted off" make it sound as if the body is a piece of rubbish a visual reminder of the death - it foreshadows the memories that are going to haunt him the stanza ending reflects the blinking - the disorientation carries you forwards, and the horror is still there when the next stanza starts repetition of 'I' at the beginning of the stanza turning point (twist) in the poem the speaker's mood changes short simple sentence suggests he thinks that once he's at home he'll forget the terrible things he's seen. The suddenness of the line also hints at the speaker being confused
