Figure 1

(i) Suggest an enquiry question or hypothesis that the students might have proposed for their investigation.

(10)

How ~~are~~ effective is coastal management in protecting the coastline from erosion?

(ii) Suggest two problems that the students' choice of locations may have caused for their collection.

(10)

A. One of the problems with finding suitable locations is a lot more built up than location B meaning there may be more ~~obstacles~~ to a good collection.

B. Location B seems to be ~~more~~ difficult to get to as there is a rocky coastline which looks dangerous. Like A looks a bit easier to get to as it is more of a flat area.

(iii) Explain how the use of Ordnance Survey (OS) maps might have helped the students choose their two beach locations and the three sites on each of those beaches to carry out the profiles.

(10)

OS maps allow you to see the profile onto land and to show you the contours in a location where there is no water present so that you can get a slight beach gradient and inland high gradient. It also shows you the coast if very close. It shows a lot of detail so that you can see the contours to beach gradient. The OS map also shows you the tide line with each beach location so that you can see the contours to gradient using tide. It can also see features that beach erosion drops to that you can also see the profile which has been made using the OS map.

This answer uses the material at the top of the page and presents it as a legitimate question, 3 marks.

Always use the resource.

There is obviously great familiarity with OS maps and several points are made, although some of them especially clearly. The answer is rather spelt by the persistent references to sites when, certainly in some cases, pupils probably intended to say sand. As with many candidates, the distinction between site and location is not made clear in this
