753BC-AD476: Ancient Roman theatre

The Romans continued the Greek theatrical tradition. Their theatres resembled Greek amphitheatres but were built on their own foundations and often enclosed on all sides. The Colosseum in Rome (pictured), which was built between AD72 and AD80, is an example of a traditional Roman theatre. Theatrical events were huge spectacles and could involve acrobatics, dancing, fighting or a person or animal being killed on stage. Roman actors wore specific costumes to represent different types of familiar characters.

900-1500: Medieval theatre

After the Romans left Britain, theatre all but died out. It was reintroduced during the 10th century in the form of religious dramas, plays with morals and 'mystery' plays performed in churches, and later outdoors. At a time when church services were conducted in Latin, plays were designed to teach Christian stories and messages to people who could not read.

1500: Commedia dell'Arte (Italy)

This form of Italian theatre became popular in the 16th and 17th centuries. Props and costumes were basic and the plays were performed - free for all - on raised platforms in public piazzas (squares). Plots generally centred around the struggle of young lovers, whose union was being hindered by an elder. These plays made use of a set of similar characters that all had different characteristics. This type of play also found its way into both French and English theatre.
