

to the failure of private prisons to meet the needs of prisoners and employees. Dr. Andra Ghent, an economics professor at University of North Carolina, a researcher, and an editor of the Journal of Banking and Finance, argues that although prisons may be fixated on cost, they neglect the real needs of prisoners: Private prisons have worse outcomes because of their current economic incentives. At present their performance is measured exclusively by how little they spend per prisoner day. There is no incentive to reduce recidivism rates-even though less recidivism means both lower crime rates and lower cost to taxpayers. High recidivism rates ensure private prisons a stable and growing stream of future 'customers'. (Ghent)

Brian Magee, communications associate for the American Humanist Association, affirms Ghent's statement that private prisons' focus on saving money leads to higher recidivism rates because the lack of money placed in rehabilitation programs causes more prisoners to return to prison, adding that it would be more cost effective if prisoners stayed out of prison once they
