Climate Change and Human Security Michael R. Redclift, David Manuel Navarrete, Mark Pelling, 2011 The challenge presented by climate change is by its nature global The populations of the Mexican Caribbean the focus of this book are faced by everyday decisions not unlike those in the urban North The difference is that for the people of the Mexican Caribbean evidence of the effects of climate change including hurricanes is very familiar to them This important study documents the choices and risks of people who are powerless to change the economic development model which is itself forcing climate change The book examines the Mexican Caribbean coast and explores the wider issues of managing climate change in vulnerable areas of the tropics It also points to the inability to integrate development thinking into climate change adaptation The authors suggest that failures in local governance the transparency of state actions and the local populations lack of effective power represents a greater threat to adaptation than the absence of technical capacity in vulnerable areas Using local case studies of communities fishing villages and tourist destinations this well researched book will appeal to international students and academics working on climate change and professionals in development conservation and tourism industries

Indigenous Dispossession M. Bianet Castellanos, 2020-12-15 Following the recent global housing boom tract housing development became a billion dollar industry in Mexico At the national level neoliberal housing policy has overtaken debates around land reform For Indigenous peoples access to affordable housing remains crucial to alleviating poverty But as palapas traditional thatch and wood houses are replaced by tract houses in the

Yucatán Peninsula Indigenous peoples relationship to land urbanism and finance is similarly transformed revealing a legacy of debt and dispossession Indigenous Dispossession examines how Maya families grapple with the ramifications of neoliberal housing policies M Bianet Castellanos relates Maya migrants experiences with housing and mortgage finance in Cancún one of Mexico's fastest growing cities Their struggle to own homes reveals colonial and settler colonial structures that underpin the city's economy built environment and racial order But even as Maya people contend with predatory lending practices and foreclosure they cultivate strategies of resistance from waiting out the state to demanding Indigenous rights in urban centers As Castellanos argues it is through these maneuvers that Maya migrants forge a new vision of Indigenous urbanism

A Return to Servitude María Bianet Castellanos, 2010 As a free trade zone and Latin America's most popular destination Cancún Mexico is more than just a tourist town It is not only actively involved in the production of transnational capital but also forms an integral part of the state's modernization plan for rural indigenous communities Indeed Maya migrants make up over a third of the city's population A Return to Servitude is an ethnography of Maya migration within Mexico that analyzes the foundational role indigenous peoples play in the development of the modern nation state Focusing on tourism in the Yucatán Peninsula M Bianet Castellanos

Black Meetings & Tourism, 2008 Fodor's Mexico, 1995 A Climate of Injustice J. Timmons Roberts, Bradley Parks, 2006-11-22 The global debate over who should take action to address climate change is extremely precarious as diametrically opposed perceptions of climate justice threaten the prospects for any long term agreement Poor nations fear limits on their efforts to grow economically and meet the needs of their own people while powerful industrial nations including the United States refuse to curtail their own excesses unless developing countries make similar sacrifices

Meanwhile although industrialized countries are responsible for 60 percent of the greenhouse gas emissions that contribute to climate change developing countries suffer the worst and first effects of climate related disasters including droughts floods and storms because of their geographical locations In A Climate of Injustice J Timmons Roberts and Bradley Parks analyze the role that inequality between rich and poor nations plays in the negotiation of global climate agreements Roberts and Parks argue that global inequality dampens cooperative efforts by reinforcing the structuralist worldviews and causal beliefs of many poor nations eroding conditions of generalized trust and promoting particularistic notions of fair solutions They develop new measures of climate related inequality analyzing fatality and homelessness rates from hydrometeorological disasters patterns of emissions inequality and participation in international environmental regimes Until we recognize that reaching a North South global climate pact requires addressing larger issues of inequality and striking a global bargain on environment and development Roberts and Parks argue the current policy gridlock will remain unresolved Climate Change 2014 - Impacts, Adaptation and Vulnerability: Global and Sectoral Aspects Christopher B. Field, Vicente R. Barros, 2014-12-29 This latest Fifth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC will again form the standard reference for all those concerned with climate change and its consequences including students researchers and policy makers in environmental science meteorology climatology biology ecology atmospheric chemistry and environmental policy Information Services Latin America ,2006-11 Business Mexico ,1998 Stuck with Tourism Matilde Córdoba Azcárate, 2020-10-20 Tourism has become one of the most powerful forces organizing the predatory geographies of late capitalism It creates entangled futures of exploitation and dependence extracting resources and labor and eclipsing other ways of doing living and imagining life And yet tourism also creates jobs encourages infrastructure development and in many places inspires the only possibility of hope and well being Stuck with Tourism explores the ambivalent nature of tourism by drawing on ethnographic evidence from the Mexican Yucatán Peninsula a region voraciously transformed by tourism development over the past forty years Contrasting labor and lived experiences at the beach resorts of Cancún protected natural enclaves along the Gulf coast historical buildings of the colonial past and maquilas for souvenir production in the Maya heartland this book explores the moral political ecological and everyday dilemmas that emerge when as Yucatán's inhabitants put it people get stuck in tourism's grip Five Suns Stephen J. Pyne, 2024-04-30 A climate defined by wet and dry seasons a mostly mountainous terrain a biota prone to disturbances a human geography characterized by a diversity of peoples all of whom rely on burning in one form or another Mexico has ideal circumstances for fire and those fires provide a unique perspective on its complex history Narrating Mexico's evolution of fire through five eras historian Stephen J Pyne describes the pre human pre Hispanic colonial industrializing 1880 1980 and contemporary 1980 2015 fire biography of this diverse and dynamic country Creatively deploying the Aztec New Fire Ceremony and the five suns that it birthed Pyne addresses the question Why does fire appear in Mexico the way it does Five Suns tells the saga through a pyric

prism Mexico has become one of the top ten firepowers in the world today through its fire suppression capabilities fire research and industrial combustion but also by those continuing customary practices that have become increasingly significant to a world that suffers too much combustion and too little fire Five Suns completes a North American fire history trilogy written by Pyne over the past 40 years complementing his histories of Canada and the United States
