 - b. Believe the client's report of pain.
 - c. Wait until it is time for the next pain medication dose.
 - d. Teach the client how to use guided imagery.

Health care providers often do not believe the client's report of pain. The nurse's primary role in pain management is to advocate for the client by believing reports of pain. It is important to remember that self-reporting is always the most reliable indication of pain. After believing that the client is in pain, the client can be assessed to determine her pain score and also be taught nonpharmacologic methods to relieve pain. The nurse needs to take action to alleviate the pain and not wait until the next medication dosage is due.

 - a. The spouse is worried that the client may become addicted.
 - b. The client wants to remain alert during the visit of a long time friend.
