

With the engine running, increase the throttle to approximately 5200 rpm. The ammeter reading should be approximately equal to the amperage rating of the alternator installed. With a fully-charged battery, the ammeter reading will be a bit lower because of the self-regulating characteristics of the generating systems. Before disconnecting the ammeter, reconnect the red harness lead to the positive battery terminal and install the wing nut.

2-8 CARBURETOR ADJUSTMENTS

Fuel and Fuel Tanks

Take time to check the fuel tank and all of the fuel lines, fittings, couplings, valves, flexible tank fill and vent. Turn on the fuel supply valve at the tank, if the engine is equipped with a self-contained fuel tank. If the gas was not drained at the end of the previous season, make a careful inspection for gum formation. When gasoline is allowed to stand for long periods of time, particularly in the presence of copper, gummy deposits form. This gum can clog the filters, lines, and passageway in the carburetor.

If the condition of the fuel is in doubt, drain, clean, and fill the tank with fresh fuel.

Fuel pressure at the carburetor should be checked whenever a lack of fuel volume at the carburetor is suspected.

High-speed Adjustment

The high-speed needle valve is adjustable on some models covered in this manual through 1974. After 1975, the high-speed orifice is fixed at the factory and is NOT

An OMC six-gallon fuel tank with the fuel line connected through a quick-disconnect fitting. Such a fitting is handy when the tank is removed from the boat for filling.

adjustable. However, larger or smaller orifices may be installed for different elevations. On all Johnson/Evinrude engines, the high-speed needle valve, or orifice, is the lower valve on the carburetor. The upper needle valve is always the idle adjustment.

A beginning "rough" adjustment for the high-speed needle valve is 3/4 turn out (counterclockwise) from the lightly seated (closed) position. TAKE CARE not to seat the valve firmly to prevent damage to the valve or the carburetor.

To make the high-speed adjustment:

a- Mount the engine in a test tank or body of water, preferably with a test wheel. Engines up to 40 hp may be operated in the high rpm range in a test tank without sustaining damage.

NEVER, AGAIN NEVER, operate the engine at high speed with a flush device attached. The engine, operating at high speed with such a device attached, would RUN-AWAY from lack of a load on the propeller, causing extensive damage.

b- Connect a tachometer to the engine.

CAUTION: Water must circulate through the lower unit to the engine any time the engine is run to prevent damage to the water pump in the lower unit. Just five seconds without water will damage the water pump.

c- Start the engine and allow it to warm to operating temperature.

d- Shift the engine into forward gear.

e- With the engine running in forward

Small horsepower engine mounted in a test tank with the low- and high-speed adjustments indicated.
