The Athenæum ,1843 The Publisher ,1912 Excerpta Medica ,1990 Cognitive Neuroscience of Language David Kemmerer,2014-11-20 Language is one of our most precious and uniquely human capacities so it is not surprising that research on its neural substrates has been advancing quite rapidly in recent years Until now however there has not been a single introductory textbook that focuses specifically on this topic Cognitive Neuroscience of Language fills that gap by providing an up to date wide ranging and pedagogically practical survey of the most important developments in the field It guides students through all of the major areas of investigation beginning with fundamental aspects of brain structure and function and then proceeding to cover aphasia syndromes the perception and production of speech the processing of language in written and signed modalities the meanings of words and the formulation and comprehension of complex expressions including grammatically inflected words complete sentences and entire stories Drawing heavily on prominent theoretical models the core chapters illustrate how such frameworks are supported and sometimes challenged by experiments employing diverse brain mapping techniques Although much of the content is inherently challenging and intended primarily for graduate or upper level undergraduate students it requires no previous knowledge of either neuroscience or linguistics defining technical terms and explaining important principles from both disciplines along the way

Brain Networks for Studying Healthy and Pathological Aging Mechanisms and Intervention Efficacy Christos Frantzidis,Ana B. Vivas,Panagiotis D. Bamidis,2020-11-18 Previous studies showed that both healthy and pathological aging are associated with changes in brain structure and function of the mature human brain The most prominent anatomical alteration are changes in prefrontal cortex morphology volume loss and reduced white matter integrity and hippocampal atrophy Cognitive decline affects mainly the performance of episodic memory speed of sensory information processing working memory inhibitory function and long term memory It has been also proposed that due to the aforementioned changes the aging brain engages in compensatory brain mechanism such as a broader activation of cortical regions mainly frontal rather than specialized activation Evidence suggests that similar changes occur with pathological aging but to a greater extent In this case information flow is disrupted due to neurodegeneration functional activation of posterior occipito temporal regions is decreased and as a consequence the brain fails to process sensorial input in the ventral pathway and cognitive deficits appear In the last years functional alterations associated with aging have been studied using the mathematical notion of graph theory that offers an integrative approach since it examines different properties of the brain network 1 Organization level 2 amount of local information processing 3 information flow 4 cortical community structure and 5 identification of functional anatomical hubs So graph theory offers an attractive way to model brain networks organization and to quantify their pathological deviations Previous studies have already employed this mathematical notion and demonstrated that age related neurodegeneration is often accompanied by loss of optimal network organization either due to diminished local information processing or due to progressive isolation of distant brain regions They have also found that changes in network properties may be present even in the preclinical phase which could be taken as a biological marker of disease
