Publisher's description Encyclopedia of Science and Technology Communication Susanna Hornig Priest, 2010-07-14 The explosion of scientific information is exacerbating the information gap between richer, poorer, educated, less educated publics. The proliferation of media technology and the popularity of the Internet help some keep up with these developments but also make it more likely others fall further behind. This is taking place in a globalizing economy and society that further complicates the division between information haves and have nots and compounds the challenge of communicating about emerging science and technology to increasingly diverse audiences. Journalism about science and technology must fill this gap yet journalists and journalism students themselves struggle to keep abreast of contemporary scientific developments. Scientist aided by public relations and public information professionals must get their stories out not only to other scientists but also to broader public audiences. Funding agencies increasingly expect their grantees to engage in outreach and education and such activity can be seen as both a survival strategy and an ethical imperative for taxpayer-supported university-based research. Science communication often in new forms must expand to meet all these needs. Providing a comprehensive introduction to students, professionals, and scholars in this area is a unique challenge because practitioners in these fields must grasp both the principles of science and the principles of science communication while understanding the social contexts of each. For this reason, science journalism and science communication are often addressed only in advanced undergraduate or graduate specialty courses rather than covered exhaustively in lower division courses. Even so, those entering the field rarely will have a comprehensive background in both science and communication studies. This circumstance underscores the importance of compiling useful reference materials. The Encyclopedia of Science and Technology

Communication presents resources and strategies for science communicators including theoretical material and background on recent controversies and key institutional actors and sources Science communicators need to understand more than how to interpret scientific facts and conclusions they need to understand basic elements of the politics sociology and philosophy of science as well as relevant media and communication theory principles of risk communication new trends and how to evaluate the effectiveness of science communication programmes to mention just a few of the major challenges This work will help to develop and enhance such understanding as it addresses these challenges and more Topics covered include advocacy policy and research organizations environmental and health communication philosophy of science media theory and science communication informal science education science journalism as a profession risk communication theory public understanding of science pseudo science in the news special problems in reporting science and technology science communication ethics U.S. News & World Report ,1998-04 Time Briton Hadden, Henry R. Luce, 1998 KNOWCON 2023 Michal Müller, Pavla Slavičková, The publication is the proceedings of the international scientific conference KNOWCON 2023 Knowledge on Economics and Management held by the Department of Economic and Managerial Studies Palack University Olomouc on December 7 and 8 2023 This collection of conference proceedings presents a diverse range of research papers spanning various dimensions of economics and management It provides insights into the dynamic landscape of contemporary issues and opportunities The topics explored in these papers encompass a wide spectrum from the impact of reduced value added tax rates on cultural services as a means of indirect public funding in the creative industries to the analysis of disinvestments in Central and Eastern European countries Furthermore the papers delve into areas such as digital transformation of business processes during the COVID 19 crisis life cycle assessment integration for sustainable decision making social entrepreneurship strategies in the context of actual challenges and the critical role of soft skills for the post 2022 world This compilation is a testament to the diversity and depth of research in these fields and underscores the importance of multidisciplinary exploration in today s ever changing global landscape Medical Humanities Review ,1998
