Urbanization and Industrialization for Africa's Transformation, 2017 The 2017 Economic Report on Africa focuses on the linkages between industrialization and urbanization Urbanization is one of Africa mega trends with profound implications for the social economic environmental dimensions of growth and transformation Theory and experience demonstrate that industrialization and urbanization can be mutually reinforcing processes It is therefore imperative to explore the linkages between urbanization and industrialization given the profound implications for structural transformation in Africa So far current policy narratives and frameworks on structural transformation and industrialization in Africa have largely failed to factor in the spatial and urban dimensions of industrialization and in particular the advantages presented by productivity enhancement and agglomeration effects generated by cities Yet the nexus between urbanization and industrialization is of particular relevance for Agenda 2063 and the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development Both agendas recognize urbanization as a critical factor for sustainable development It is also important to consider urbanization and industrialization in light of Africa s engagement with the Third United Nations Conference on Housing and Sustainable Urban Development Habitat III to be held in Quito Ecuador in October 2016 In this context African policy makers have clearly recognized urbanization as an engine of structural transformation for inclusive and sustainable growth

Alain Bertaud,2018-12-04 An argument that operational urban planning can be improved by the application of the tools of urban economics to the design of regulations and infrastructure Urban planning is a craft learned through practice Planners make rapid decisions that have an immediate impact on the ground the width of streets the minimum size of land parcels the heights of buildings The language they use to describe their objectives is qualitative sustainable livable resilient often with no link to measurable outcomes Urban economics on the other hand is a quantitative science based on theories models and empirical evidence largely developed in academic settings In this book the eminent urban planner Alain Bertaud argues that applying the theories of urban economics to the practice of urban planning would greatly improve both the productivity of cities and the welfare of urban citizens Bertaud explains that markets provide the indispensable mechanism for cities development He cites the experience of cities without markets for land or labor in pre reform China and Russia this urban planners dream created inefficiencies and waste Drawing on five decades of urban planning experience in forty cities around the world Bertaud links cities productivity to the size of their labor markets argues that the design of infrastructure and markets can complement each other examines the spatial distribution of land prices and densities stresses the importance of mobility and affordability and critiques the land use regulations in a number of cities that aim at redesigning existing cities instead of just trying to alleviate clear negative externalities Bertaud concludes by describing the new role that joint teams of urban planners and economists could play to improve the way cities are managed      The Quaker World C.
