Walton,2017-08-03 The fight against corruption is now a core part of development policy and practice Some call these efforts a war on corruption What does this so called war mean for developing countries And how do international perspectives on corruption relate to local and national concerns This book examines the relevance of anti corruption discourse in Papua New Guinea PNG one of the most culturally rich and corrupt countries on earth Despite increased international national and local efforts to address corruption over the past two decades many fear that levels of corruption continue to rise largely unabated Some believe that the mismatch between international national and local assumptions regarding the nature of corruption and how it should be addressed is at the heart of the issue International anti corruption initiatives stress zero tolerance and try to strengthen formal state based institutions However many people in PNG are more concerned about maintaining social relationships than following state laws and rules This book critically examines the implications of the anti corruption agenda and the collision of international national and local perspectives In doing so it provides a diagnostic on international assumptions about corruption and how it should be fought in developing countries offering surprising and important lessons This book is essential reading for scholars and students of Development Studies Geography Political Studies and Economics as well as practitioners and policy makers working in development     Catalogue of the Public Documents of the ... Deport Nancy Hiemstra, 2019-03-15 Detention and deportation have become keystones of immigration and border enforcement policies around the world The United States has built a massive immigration enforcement system that detains and deports more people than any other country This system is grounded in the assumptions that national borders are territorially fixed and controllable and that detention and deportation bolster security and deter migration Nancy Hiemstra's multisited ethnographic research pairs investigation of enforcement practices in the United States with an exploration into conditions migrants face in one country of origin Ecuador Detain and Deport's transnational approach reveals how the U.S. immigration enforcement system's chaotic organization and operation distracts from the mismatch between these assumptions and actual outcomes Hiemstra draws on the experiences of detained and deported migrants as well as their families and communities in Ecuador to show convincingly that instead of deterring migrants and improving national security, detention and deportation generate insecurities and forge lasting connections across territorial borders At the same time the system's chaos works to curtail rights and maintain detained migrants on a narrow path to deportation Hiemstra argues that in addition to the racialized ideas of national identity and a fluctuating dependence on immigrant labor that have long propelled U.S. immigration policies the contemporary emphasis on detention and deportation is fueled by the influence of people and entities that profit from them    Pesticides and agriculture Dr Dave Watson, 2018-08-06 Discusses the competitive strategies of the major pesticide companies Identifies the main forces driving the pesticides industry Explains the evolution of the pesticide industry as a context for understanding its future development
