Between Church and State James W. Fraser,2016-09-15 A fully updated second edition of this essential look at the continuing tensions between religion and American public schools Today the ongoing controversy about the place or lack of place of religion in public schools is a burning issue in the United States Prayer at football games creationism in the classroom the teaching of religion and morals and public funding for private religious schools are just a few of the subjects over which people are skirmishing In Between Church and State historian and pastor James W Fraser shows that these battles have been going on for as long as there have been public schools and argues there has never been any consensus about what the separation of church and state means for American society or about the proper relationship between religion and public education Looking at the difficult question of how private issues of faith can be reconciled with the very public nature of schooling Fraser s classic book paints a complex picture of how a multicultural society struggles to take the deep commitments of people of faith into account including people of many different faiths and no faith In this fully updated second edition Fraser tackles the culture wars adding fresh material on current battles over public funding for private religious schools He also addresses the development of the long simmering evolution creationism debate and explores the tensions surrounding a discussion of religion and the accommodation of an increasingly religiously diverse American student body Between Church and State includes new scholarship on the role of Roger Williams and William Penn in developing early American conceptions of religious liberty It traces the modern expansion of Catholic parochial schools and closely examines the passage of the First Amendment changes in American Indian tribal education the place of religion in Booker T Washington and W E B Du Bois s debates about African American schooling and the rapid growth of Jewish day schools among a community previously known for its deep commitment to secular public education The End of Public Schools David W. Designing Tito's Capital Brigitte Le Normand, 2014-07-21 The devastation of World War II left the Yugoslavian capital of Belgrade in ruins Communist Party leader Josip Broz Tito saw this as a golden opportunity to recreate the city through his own vision of socialism In Designing Tito's Capital Brigitte Le Normand analyzes the unprecedented planning process called for by the new leader and the determination of planners to create an urban environment that would benefit all citizens Led first by architect Nikola Dobrovic and later by Milos Somborski planners blended the predominant school of European modernism and the socialist principles of efficient construction and space usage to produce a model for housing green space and working environments for the masses A major influence was modernist Le Corbusier and his Athens Charter published in 1943 which called for the total reconstruction of European cities transforming them into compact and verdant vertical cities unfettered by slumlords private interests and traffic congestion As Yugoslavia transitioned toward self management and market socialism the functionalist district of New Belgrade and its modern living were lauded as the model city of socialist man The glow of the utopian ideal would fade by the 1960s when market socialism had raised expectations for living standards and the government was eager for inhabitants to finance their own housing By 1972 a new master plan emerged under Aleksandar Dordevic fashioned with the assistance of American experts Espousing current theories about systems and rational process planning and using cutting edge computer technology the new plan left behind the dream for a functionalist Belgrade and instead focused on managing growth trends While the public resisted aspects of the new planning approach that seemed contrary to socialist values it embraced the idea of a decentralized city connected by mass transit Through extensive archival research and personal interviews with participants in the planning process Le Normand s comprehensive study documents the evolution of New Belgrade and its adoption and ultimate rejection of modernist principles while also situating it within larger continental and global contexts of politics economics and urban planning
