These findings suggest that the use of a single, standardized, and validated instrument to assess the quality of life of patients with a specific disease may be more useful than the use of multiple, non-standardized, and non-validated instruments. The use of a single, standardized, and validated instrument may also be more cost-effective than the use of multiple, non-standardized, and non-validated instruments.

Abstract

- Abstract—This paper presents a new approach to the design of a control system for a nonlinear system. The system is first linearized around an operating point. The linearized system is then controlled using a linear control law. The nonlinear system is then controlled using the linear control law. The results show that the linear control law can be used to control the nonlinear system.
