the poetic license to see feel and touch the deeper things of life to enjoy our Earth with our neighbors As we expose our children to poetry they become more aware of themselves and others and realize that words are important to help them communicate They may not realize it then but they are being propelled to do more for themselves be better readers and strengthen their ability to communicate I have heard parents say I don t have a creative bone in me and I don t think my child has either What a burden to place on them limitation that will remain with him her for life That is far from the truth We are all creative but we have placed limitations on our creativity Poetry breaks that spell and sets us free to be who we truly are Poetry creates critical thinking in the classroom Through analysis of available facts evidence observation and arguments children are able to form a judgment I ll use this original poem which I have written to explain the point English for the More Able Mary Green,2002
