

Lab Reports for Biology

Please follow the instructions given below when writing lab reports for this course. Don't hesitate to ask if you have questions about form or content. Above all, remember to write with precision, clarity, and economy.

Writing Your writing should be in full sentences and easily understood. It should conform to the conventions of standard written English (sentence form, grammar, spelling, etc.). Good writing is as important in science as it is in other disciplines because one's ideas have little impact, no matter how important they may be, if they are not well communicated. While style is mostly an individual characteristic, everyone should strive for presentations that are easily understandable as well as grammatically correct. One reason for emphasizing clarity is that writing and thinking are closely related; as many people have said, "fuzzy writing reflects fuzzy thinking." When people have difficulty translating their ideas into words, they generally do not know the material as well as they think.

Style Scientific writing is usually in the past tense because one reports on experiments that have been completed. The writing should not be too self-referential (e.g., "I ground up the..."), although you may use the word "I" if doing so makes the writing easier to read. Writing that is predominantly in the passive voice is deadly to read (e.g., "acorns were eaten by the squirrels"), so use the active voice as much as possible (e.g., "squirrels ate the acorns"). Remember: past tense, active voice.

Presentation The first page of a lab report should be a title page with the title of the report, your name, the date, the course (e.g., Biology 210), and your lab partners. There should then follow text that is a minimum of two pages and a maximum of five double-spaced, typewritten pages in length (tables, figures, and references do not count in this total). All writing should be on only one side of the page, and the reports should be stapled in the upper left-hand corner. The best length is shorter than the maximum, so don't expand a shorter report to reach a five-page limit. It is important to write concisely. The report must be typed or word-processed. Neatness and clarity of presentation are almost as important as clarity of thought.

Audience Write the report as if you were writing to other students who are taking a similar course but have not done this experiment. Assume that they have some familiarity with the subject matter but no expertise. Do not write specifically for the instructor.

Collaboration You may talk about the lab exercise as much as you like while in the laboratory. Outside the lab, though, you should not discuss your writing of the report
