Kosovo and Serbia Leandrit I. Mehmeti, Branislav Radeljic, 2017-06-17 Azan on the Moon is an in depth anthropological study of people s lives along the Pamir Highway in eastern Tajikistan Constructed in the 1930s in rugged high altitude terrain the road fundamentally altered the material and social fabric of this former Soviet outpost on the border with Afghanistan and China The highway initially brought sentiments of disconnection and hardship followed by Soviet modernization and development and ultimately a sense of distinction from bordering countries and urban centers that continues to this day Based on extensive fieldwork and through an analysis of construction mobility technology media development Islam and the state Till Mostowlansky shows how ideas of modernity are both challenged and reinforced in contemporary Tajikistan In the wake of China s rise in Central Asia people along the Pamir Highway strive to reconcile a modern future with a modern past Weaving together the road a population and a region Azan on the Moon presents a rich ethnography of global connections

Earned Citizenship Michael J. Sullivan, 2019-03-19 The migration and settlement of 11 million unauthorized immigrants is among the leading political challenges facing the United States today The majority of unauthorized immigrants in the U S have been here for more than five years and are settling into American communities working forming families and serving in the military even though they may be detained and deported if they are discovered An open question remains as to what to do about unauthorized immigrants who are already living in the United States On one hand it is important that the government sends a message that future violations of immigration law will not be tolerated On the other sits a deeper ethical dilemma that is the focus of this book what do the state and citizens owe to unauthorized immigrants who have served their adopted country Earned Citizenship argues that long term unauthorized immigrant residents should be able to earn legalization and a pathway to citizenship through service in their adopted communities Their service would act as restitution for immigration law violations Military service in particular would merit naturalization in countries with a strong citizen soldier tradition including the United States The book also considers the civic value of caregiving as a service to citizens and the country contending that family immigration policies should be expanded to recognize the importance of caregiving duties for dependents This argument is part of a broader project in political theory and public policy aimed at reconciling civic republicanism with a feminist ethic of care and its emphasis on dependency work As a whole Earned Citizenship provides a non humanitarian justification for legalizing unauthorized immigrants based on their contributions to citizens and institutions in their adopted nation

Sustainable Peace in Northeast Asia Yong-Shik Lee, 2023-09-05 Sustainable Peace in Northeast Asia examines the causes of lasting and complex tensions in the region from underlying political historical military and economic perspectives discusses their historical development and political economic implications for the world and explores possible solutions to build lasting peace The book is unique in that it approaches the topic from the historical perspective of each constituent country in the region Major global powers such as the United States and Russia have also closely engaged in the political and economic affairs of this region through a network of alliances diplomacy trade and investment The book also discusses the influence of these external powers over the crisis their political and economic objectives in the region their strategies and the dynamics that their engagement has created Both South Korea and North Korea have sought reunification of the Korean peninsula which will have a substantial impact on the region The book examines its justification feasibility and effects for the region The book discusses the role of Mongolia in the context of the power dynamics in Northeast Asia A relatively small country in terms of its population Mongolia has rarely been examined in this context Sustainable Peace in Northeast Asia makes a fresh assessment of its potential role The Populist Temptation Barry Eichengreen, 2018-05-03 Populism of the right and left has spread like wildfire throughout the world The impulse reached its apogee in the United States with the election of Trump but it was a force in Europe ever since the Great Recession sent the European economy into a prolonged tailspin In the simplest terms populism is a political ideology that vilifies economic and political elites and instead lionizes the people The people populists of all stripes contend need to retake power from the unaccountable elites who have left them powerless And typically populists distrust of elites shades into a catchall distrust of trained experts because of their perceived distance from and contempt for the people Another signature element of populist movements is faith in a savior who can not only speak directly to the people but also serve as a vessel for the plain people's hopes and dreams Going back to the 1890s a series of such saviors have come and gone in the US alone from William Jennings Bryan to Huey Long to finally Donald Trump In The Populist Temptation the eminent economic historian Barry Eichengreen focuses on the global resurgence of populism today and places it in a deep context Alternating between the present and earlier populist waves from modern history he argues that populists tend to thrive most in the wake of economic downturns when it is easy to convince the masses of elite malfeasance Yet while there is more than a grain of truth that bankers financiers and bought politicians are responsible for the mess populists own solutions tend to be simplistic and economically counterproductive Moreover by arguing that the ordinary people are at the mercy of extra national forces beyond their control international capital immigrants cosmopolitan globalists populists often degenerate into demagoguery and xenophobia There is no one solution to addressing the concerns that populists raise but Eichengreen argues that there is an obvious place to start shoring up and improving the welfare state so that it is better able to act as a buffer for those who suffer most during economic slumps For example America's patchwork welfare state was not well equipped to deal with the economic fallout that attended globalization and the decline of manufacturing in America and that played no small part in Trump's victory Lucidly explaining both the appeals and dangers of populism across history this book is essential reading for anyone seeking to understand not just the populist phenomenon but more generally the lasting political fallout that follows in the wake of major economic crises The Making of a History Gregory M.

Tobin, 2014-09-10 Walter Prescott Webb became one of the best known interpreters of the American West following the publication of The Great Plains in 1931 That book remained one of the outstanding studies of the region for decades and attracted considerable attention over the years for its unusual emphasis on the impact of geographic factors on the process of settlement Using manuscript sources some of which had not previously been available Gregory M Tobin has traced the elements that went into the planning and writing of The Great Plains and that account for its distinctive approach to the writing of a regional history Tobin emphasizes two aspects of Webb's life that molded the historian's outlook his early family life and community connections in West Texas and his admiration for the ideas of scholar Lindley Miller Keasbey Webb reacted strongly against the assumption that the only cultural values of any real worth emanated from the urban and sophisticated East he was determined to write the history of his own people in a way that would reveal the scale of their anonymous contribution to American civilization By reverting to Keasbey s stress on the relationship between natural environment and social institutions Webb broadened his study to take in what he believed to be a distinct geographic environment The result was The Great Plains an assertion of individual and regional identity by a man with a personal stake in establishing the image of a distinctive Plains civilization Although The Making of a History is not a full biography of Walter Prescott Webb it is the first biographically oriented study of a man regarded as one of the twentieth century s major western historians It places his development within the framework of his intellectual and social setting and in a sense subjects his career to the same type of scrutiny that he advocated as the basis of the study of evolving cultures
