How Does it Feel? Point of View in Translation Charlotte

Bosseaux,2007-01-01 Narratology is concerned with the study of narratives but surprisingly it does not usually distinguish between original and translated texts This lack of distinction is regrettable In recent years the visibility of translations and translators has become a widely discussed topic in Translation Studies yet the issue of translating a novel s point of view has remained relatively unexplored It seems crucial to ask how far a translator s choices affect the novel s point of view and whether characters or narrators come across similarly in originals and translations This book addresses exactly these questions It proposes a method by which it becomes possible to investigate how the point of view of a work of fiction is created in an original and adapted in translation It shows that there are potential problems involved in the translation of linguistic features that constitute point of view deixis modality transitivity and free indirect discourse and that this has an impact on the way works are translated Traditionally comparative analysis of originals and their translations have relied on manual examinations this book demonstrates that corpus based tools can greatly facilitate and sharpen the process of comparison The method is demonstrated using Virginia Woolf s To The Lighthouse 1927 and The Waves 1931 and their French translations
