The Regulation of Product Standards in World Trade Law Ming

Du,2020-11-12 This monograph has two central purposes The first is to provide a critical analysis of how governmental private and hybrid product standards are regulated in the GATT WTO legal framework The second purpose is to explore both positively and normatively the impact that WTO disciplines may have on the composition function and decision making process of various standard setting bodies through the lens of a series of selected case studies including the EU eco labelling scheme ISO standards and private standards such as the FSC The book analyses what role if any the WTO may play in making product standards applied in international trade embody not only technological superiority but also substantive and procedural fairness such as deliberation representativeness openness transparency due process and accountability Whilst it has been long recognised that voluntary product standards drawn up by both governmental and non governmental bodies can in practice create trade barriers as serious as mandatory governmental regulations a rigorous and systematic inquiry into the boundary relevance and impact of WTO disciplines on product standards is still lacking Providing a lucid interpretation of the relevant WTO rules and cases on product standards this book fills this significant gap in WTO law literature Definitive and comprehensive this is an essential reference work for scholars and practitioners alike

The Political Economy of Energy Subsidy Reform Gabriela

Inchauste,David G. Victor,2017-03-22 This book proposes a simple framework for understanding the political economy of subsidy reform andapplies it to four in depth country studies covering more than 30 distinct episodes of reform Five key lessons emerge First energy subsidies often follow a life cycle beginning as a way to stabilize pricesand reduce exposure to price volatility for low income consumers However as they grow in size and politicalpower they become entrenched Second subsidy reform strategies vary because the underlying politicaleconomy problems vary When benefits are concentrated satisfying or isolating interest groups withalternative policies is an important condition for effective reform When benefits are diffuse it can be muchharder to identify and manage the political coalition needed for reform Third governments vary in theiradministrative and political capacities to implement difficult energy subsidy reforms Fourth improvementsin social protection systems are often critical to the success of reforms because they make it possible totarget assistance to those most in need Finally the most interesting cases involve governments that take a strategic approach to the challenges of political economy In these settings fixing energy subsidies is central to the governments missions of retaining political power and reorganizing how the government delivers benefits to the population These cases are examples of reform engineering where governments actively seek to create the capacity to implement alternative policies depoliticize tariffs and build credibility around alternative policies The most successful reforms involve active efforts by policy leaders to identify the political forces supporting energy subsidies and redirect or inoculate them
