

Coaching and Mentoring

Becoming a successful leader in today's complex and rapidly changing world and healthcare industry can be challenging. However, with the proper knowledge and training, transformational leaders can emerge. Transformational leadership requires a leader who inspires others by encouraging change, creativity, and the formation of new ideas (Porter-O'Grady & Malloch, 2018). Through this knowledge, accountability is achieved, not only for oneself, but all people under the leader's authority. This accountability makes the leader a role model, who demonstrates many important skills by becoming a mentor and a coach. While each serves a vital role in leadership, it is important for a transformational leader to know the difference between a coach and a mentor, and the challenges and benefits that may arise through the utilization of each skill.

Coaching as a Leader

Coaching can best be described as a "developmental process in a one-on-one, formal, short-to medium-term counseling relationship focused on sustained behavior development and modification in the coachee" (Hastings & Kane, 2018, p. 12). Due to the limited time frame, coaching tends to stress the importance of personal, departmental, and organizational growth and development while creating a plan of action for the coachee to follow. The action plan should be detailed and focused in order to achieve the proper developmental goals set forth. Porter-O'Grady and Malloch (2018) expand on the aforementioned definition by adding that the coaching role is a partnership, where the coach forms a meaningful relationship and teaches accountability, while showing that change and adaption are necessary for the growth of the individual and organization. While change is inevitable, having a leader and coach who embraces it and strives to create new avenues to accomplish individual and organizational development is a priority.

When a leader transforms into the role of coach, they must possess many characteristics to ensure they become successful. According to Hastings and Kane (2018) a few key characteristics of a flourishing coach include "rapport, collaboration, commitment, trust, listening, counseling skills, and confidentiality" (p. 12). Each of these characteristics are taught extensively to nurses, however to be a leader and effective coach, each characteristic must be more refined and present with each interaction with the coachee. Coaching should be also be individualized to meet their needs. Yarborough (2018) describe six key principles of a successful coach, which include the creation of a safe and challenging environment, working with the needs of the coachee, facilitation and collaboration, advocating for self-awareness, learning from experience, as well as modeling what you coach. Each of these principles serves to strengthen the relationship between coach and coachee and will help transform the coachee into a more valuable leader.

author's doctoral research in 2013 provides a link to the reduction of toxicity in mentoring relationships. The book offers practical help for example a guide to setting up a mentoring scheme. The Learning Mentor's Source and Resource Book Kathy Salter, Rhonda Twidle, 2005-09-14 Runner up TES NASEN Book Awards Books for Teaching and Learning Category 2005 Excellent it meets a real need on the part of learning mentors going into schools who can be expected to sort out problems that staff with years of experience can't sort out and to act as a sponge for all sorts of trauma and emotion. This is something schools can keep on hand not a complete training package but useful. The contacts sections for example the one on bereavement are invaluable. Learning mentors are expected to know a bit about everything. Comments from the TES NASEN book awards panel. This practical resource based on development work in a large high school covers a wide range of topics and provides an excellent starter pack for new mentors and anyone involved in their induction. SENCO Update. This book landed on my desk this morning and I just had to include it. It is aimed at LMs, TAs and teachers and is a really useful resource. It comes with a CD ROM. Adobe Acrobat needed and is part of Lucky Duck Publications which is well known for producing quality resources in the field of emotional literacy. There are thirteen chapters on Emotional Intelligence, Self Esteem, Anger Management, Bereavement, Self harm, Drug Awareness, Bullying Behaviour, Change, Transition, Attendance, School Refusal and Punctuality, Revisions and Friendship. Many of you will recognise these themes as areas in which you work and may already have resources for these areas but these are conveniently put together in one book. It is aimed at pupils at the upper end of KS2 up to KS4. Each chapter contains information around each topic plus photocopiable worksheets such as emotions cards, stories, ideas for games and activities and links to websites. Most of these can be adapted to suit the needs of different schools and to facilitate working within the school's policies. I would especially recommend this book to people who are new to these roles or who are setting up emotional literacy groups within schools for the first time but established groups would also find them useful. Teaching Assistant News. Learning mentors are well established in our schools as a skilled and resourceful adjunct to the staff group. They bring a varied background of training and expertise often adding additional accomplishments to those of the teaching staff. This publication is produced by two colleague mentors who have researched the information and produced the resources they needed to do their job well. The book provides a factual introduction to the range of special needs they encounter amongst the students they support. Self Esteem, Emotional and behavioural difficulties, Anger management, Self harm. In addition they include support strategies, interventions and some copiable resources based on their own experiences and good practice. This is a great book for mentors, TAs and teachers. Keep it on the staff room coffee table. Kathy Salter worked for nearly six years as a Learning Mentor in a large Leeds High School and now works for the Leeds Youth Offending Service as a Youth Justice Worker. Rhonda Twidle is a trainee Probation Officer in West Yorkshire. Prior to this she has four years experience of supporting young people with social and emotional difficulties in the roles of Learning Mentor in Leeds and as a Support Worker in Tyneside. 180 Days™: Reading for Kindergarten Suzanne
