Supernatural Selection Matt Rossano, 2010-05-28 In 2006 scientist Richard Dawkins published a blockbuster bestseller The God Delusion. This atheist manifesto sparked a furious reaction from believers who have responded with numerous books of their own. By pitting science against religion, however, this debate overlooks what science can tell us about religion. According to evolutionary psychologist Matt J. Rossano, what science reveals is that religion made us human. In Supernatural Selection, Rossano presents an evolutionary history of religion. Neither an apologist for religion nor a religion basher, he draws together evidence from a wide range of disciplines to show the valuable, even essential, adaptive purpose served by systematic belief in the supernatural. The roots of religion stretch as far back as half a million years when our ancestors developed the motor control to engage in social rituals that is to sing and dance together. Then about 70,000 years ago a global ecological crisis drove humanity to the edge of extinction. It forced the survivors to create new strategies for survival and religious rituals were foremost among them. Fundamentally, Rossano writes, religion is a way for humans to relate to each other and the world around them, and in the grim struggles of prehistory it offered significant survival and reproductive advantages. It emerged as our ancestors' first health care system, and a critical part of that health care system was social support. Religious groups tended to be far more cohesive, which gave them a competitive advantage over non-religious groups and enabled them to conquer the globe. Rather than focusing on one aspect of religion as many theorists do, Rossano offers an all-encompassing approach that is rich with surprises, insights, and provocative conclusions. Resources in Education

, 1998 Analysing Identities in Discourse Rosana Dolón, Júlia Todolí, 2008-04-23 The discursive construction of identity is often under the control of the dominant forces in society and frequently results in forms of manipulation and abuse. This awareness led to the celebration of the First International Conference on CDA Valencia 2004, where over three hundred academics working in the field of Critical Discourse Analysis became actively engaged in this important issue. The seven studies included in this volume have been selected as representative of those areas of human experience that have been given most intellectual attention and considered to be in fact in need for critical unravelling. Ethnic categorization in multicultural classrooms, patriotic discourse construction in Chinese readers, the denial of Palestinian identity in schoolbooks, the diverse constructions of European identities, Arabs constructing themselves on the worldwide web, identity construction in sexual assault trials, the representations of a dangerous other in cases of PLWHAs are the contextual perspectives embraced in this book to account for forms of power abuse in the discursive construction of identities. Research in Education

Cumulated Index Medicus ,1998      School, Family, and Community Partnerships, Student Economy Edition Joyce Epstein,2018-10-03 This book encourages more professors of education sociology psychology and related fields to prepare the next generation of education professionals to understand and implement programs and practices of family and community involvement to increase student success in school      Human Rights, Diversity, and National Identity Patricia E. Bromley,2011 Fundamental world changes that simultaneously undermine a nation state s charisma and promote the rise of a supra national system have wide ranging effects upon national states within a modern global society My dissertation empirically examines the effects of social and cultural globalization on systems of mass schooling which are central institutions in every country Globally primary and secondary education initially emerged as the premier tool for nation states to create a unified national citizenry loyal to their country and socialized into a common cultural tradition I examine the extent to which this original nationalizing purpose of schooling is challenged by the increased emphases on universal human rights and diversity in civic education The analyses consist of two sections Hierarchical linear models are used to analyze a unique primary data source of 521 social science textbooks from 74 countries during the period 1970 2008 These findings show a worldwide increase in emphasis on human rights and increases in discussions of diversity in well established liberal democracies Cross national quantitative analyses are complemented by a qualitative case study of social science curricula in British Columbia BC which examines nation building within a context of strong emphasis on diversity and human rights The BC study utilizes currently approved high school citizenship education textbooks as well as older textbooks dating back to 1871 It also draws on a selection of historical documents including Ministry of Education reports curricular frameworks and high school exit exams Process wise I find the incorporation of human rights and diversity reflects macro level changes in national and global society Content wise I find four main approaches to reconciling ideas of human rights and diversity with national identity 1 framing human rights and multiculturalism as part of national identity 2 using pedagogical approaches that promote multiple perspectives and individual agency 3 celebrating social and scientific figures and accomplishments as the source of national pride and 4 drawing on exogenous sources to affirm state legitimacy This study is one of the first to theorize that civic education worldwide is moving away from a national focus and to provide empirical evidence of this trend A key implication is that educational systems are being repurposed from their original goal of constructing a unitary national citizenry to a new view emphasizing human diversity and equality in a globally interconnected world Further students are increasingly taught that the global civil society and non state actors are important and legitimate agents of social change
