The Effect of War, Slavery, and National Identity (1844-1877)

The mid-19th century in the United States was dominated by the burning question of the Civil War, a conflict that would determine the nation's very soul. From 1844 to 1877, Americans witnessed the country tear itself apart over slavery, secession, and the quest for reconstruction.

The admission of Texas as a slave state in 1845 spurred a crisis of national unity. The Compromise of 1850, which admitted California as a free state, only temporarily postponed the inevitable clash.

The Dred Scott decision of 1857, which ruled that African Americans could not sue in federal court, further deepened the divide. The emergence of the Republican Party, with its anti-slavery platform, and the election of Abraham Lincoln in 1860 were seen by many in the South as direct threats to their way of life and the institution of slavery.
