CHAPTER 1 PERSPECTIVES ON LEARNING

Multiple Choice Questions

Human beings undoubtedly learn more during the course of a lifetime than any other species on earth. The major result of this capacity to learn is that:

- New instincts begin to emerge.
- Human thought becomes less logical with each generation.
- Humans can benefit from their experiences.
- Humans are the only species whose behavior cannot be analyzed in terms of stimuli and responses.

Three of the following are examples of learning. Which one is not?

- Abigail cries when she steps on a sharp pebble.
- After many hours of heated debate, Brian begins to advocate political practices he has previously opposed.
- Cara suddenly recognizes how the division fact " $24 \div 4 = 6$ " is related to the multiplication fact " $6 \times 4 = 24$ ."
- David has been running away from German shepherds ever since he was bitten by a German shepherd two years ago.

Reynelda has trouble tracing a complex shape with a pencil when she is in kindergarten, but she can do it quite well by the time she is in second grade. Is this an instance of learning?

- Yes, because her behavior has changed.
- No, because the circumstances are too dissimilar.
- Maybe, although the change may simply be due to physiological maturation.
- Maybe, but only if she is being reinforced for tracing accurately.

Human Learning Ormrod Study Guide:

Human Learning Jeanne Ellis Ormrod, 2008 Human Learning fifth edition is the leading text on learning theories applied to education. It covers a broad range of learning theories including behaviorist, social cognitive, cognitive, and developmental. Complex learning and cognition including metacognition, transfer, and social processes in knowledge construction are also covered, as is motivation. Coverage demonstrates through the author's extremely lucid and engaging prose how different concepts relate to one another. The book provides dozens of proven examples and emphasizes meaningful learning that makes the fundamentals of these theories comprehensible to students with little or no prior coursework in psychology. Key revisions to this book include a thoroughly updated section on behaviorism, a new separate chapter on the developmental theories of Piaget and Vygotsky, and a reorganized motivation section. Brown, Timothy D. Green, 2015-06-26 The Essentials of Instructional Design 3rd Edition introduces the essential elements of instructional design ID to students who are new to ID The key procedures within the ID process learner analysis task analysis needs analysis developing goals and objectives organizing instruction developing instructional activities assessing learner achievement and evaluating the success of the instructional design are covered in complete chapters that describe and provide examples of how the procedure is accomplished using the best known instructional design models Unlike most other ID books The Essentials of Instructional Design provides an overview of the principles and practice of ID without placing emphasis on any one ID model Offering the voices of instructional designers from a number of professional settings and providing real life examples from across sectors students learn how professional organizations put the various ID processes into practice This introductory textbook provides students with the information they need to make informed decisions as they design and develop instruction offering them a variety of possible approaches for each step in the ID process and clearly explaining the strengths and challenges associated with each approach     Encyclopedia of the Sciences of Learning Norbert M. Seel, 2011-10-05 Over the past century educational psychologists and researchers have posited many theories to explain how individuals learn i e how they acquire organize and deploy knowledge and skills The 20th century can be considered the century of psychology on learning and related fields of interest such as motivation cognition metacognition etc and it is fascinating to see the various mainstreams of learning remembered and forgotten over the 20th century and note that basic assumptions of early theories survived several paradigm shifts of psychology and epistemology Beyond folk psychology and its naive theories of learning psychological learning theories can be grouped into some basic categories such as behaviorist learning theories connectionist learning theories cognitive learning theories constructivist learning theories and social learning theories Learning theories are not limited to psychology and related fields of interest but rather we can find the topic of learning in various disciplines such as philosophy and epistemology education information science biology and as a result of the emergence of computer technologies especially also in the field of computer sciences and artificial intelligence As a consequence machine learning struck a chord in the 1980s and became an important field of the learning sciences in general As the learning sciences became more specialized and complex the various fields of interest were widely spread and separated from each other as a consequence even presently there is no comprehensive overview of the sciences of learning or the central theoretical concepts and vocabulary on which researchers rely The Encyclopedia of the Sciences of Learning provides an up to date broad and authoritative coverage of the specific terms mostly used in the sciences of learning and its related fields including relevant areas of instruction pedagogy cognitive sciences and especially machine learning and knowledge engineering This modern compendium will be an indispensable source of information for scientists educators engineers and technical staff active in all fields of learning More specifically the Encyclopedia provides fast access to the most relevant theoretical terms provides up to date broad and authoritative coverage of the most important theories within the various fields of the learning sciences and adjacent sciences and communication technologies supplies clear and precise explanations of the theoretical terms cross references to related entries and up to date references to important research and publications The Encyclopedia also contains biographical entries of individuals who have substantially contributed to the sciences of learning the entries are written by a distinguished panel of researchers in the various fields of the learning sciences
