Matter and Form Ann Ward, 2009-01-01 Matter and Form explores the relationship that has long existed between natural science and political philosophy Plato's Socrates articulates the Ideas or Forms as an account of the ultimate source of causality in the cosmos Aristotle's natural philosophy had a significant impact on his political philosophy he argues that humans are by nature political animals having their natural end in the city whose regime is hierarchically structured based on differences in moral and intellectual capacity Medieval theorists attempt to synthesize classical natural and political philosophy with the revealed truths of scripture they argue that divine reason structures an ordered universe the awareness of which allows for psychic and political harmony among human beings Enlightenment thinkers challenge the natural philosophy of classical and medieval philosophers ushering in a more liberal political order For example for Hobbes there is no rest in nature as there are no Aristotelian forms or natural places that govern matter Hobbes applies his mechanistic understanding of material nature to his understanding of human nature individuals are by nature locked in an endless pursuit of power until death However from this mechanistic understanding of humanity's natural condition Hobbes develops a social contract theory in which civil and political society is constituted from consent Later thinkers such as Locke and Rousseau modify this Hobbesian premise in their pursuit of the protection of rights and a free society Nevertheless materialist conceptions of the cosmos have not always given rise to liberal democratic philosophies Historicism influence on scientific inquiry in the nineteenth century is connected to Darwin s theory of evolution Darwin reasoned that over time the process of natural selection produces ever newer and more highly adapted species Reflecting a form of social Darwinism Nietzsche envisions an aristocratic order that draws its inspiration from art rather than the rationalism
