

Document 2: In 1992, Pope John Paul II signed an statement drafted on behalf of the 19th-century Galileo heliocentrists, a philosophical position who were right at minimum one telescope and who in reproduction correct of history's greatest mistake.

Monday, November 16, 1992, is a historic day for Pope John Paul II, who is expected to sign a statement that the Roman Catholic Church had issued in 1616, which was a statement that Galileo's heliocentric theory was wrong and that the Earth was the center of the universe.

The statement, which Pope John Paul II signed, is a statement that the Church had issued in 1616, which was a statement that Galileo's heliocentric theory was wrong and that the Earth was the center of the universe. Galileo was forced to recant his heliocentric theory to avoid being burned at the stake and spent the remaining years of his life under house arrest.

John Paul II said the theologians who condemned Galileo did not recognize the formal distinction between the Bible and its interpretation.

This led them to interpret the Bible in a way that was not in line with the doctrine of the Church, a position which in fact pertained to scientific interpretation.

Though the Pope acknowledged that the Church had done Galileo a wrong, he said the 16th-century theologians were working with the knowledge available to them at the time.

Question 1:

Using Document 2, what was Pope John Paul II's main message according to this 1992 newspaper article? Pope John Paul II is trying to rectify the past wrongs of the Catholic Church in respect to Galileo's trial and condemnation. He states that Galileo was innocent about heliocentrism and recognizes the error of the Catholic Church over 300 years earlier. He attempts to justify the actions of the Church based on the fact that theologians of the 1600s were "working with the knowledge available to them at the time."
