blended and virtual learning have become important during the past year and have become integral for the continuance of learning. The iFlex classroom model, a variation of blended learning, allows non-interactive teaching activities to take place without teachers' direct involvement, freeing up time for more meaningful teacher-student and student-student interactions. There is evidence that iFlex leads to increased student engagement and motivation, as well as better exploitation of teachers and classroom time, leading to the development of higher-order cognitive skills, as well as study skills for students' future needs related to citizenship, college, and careers. The Handbook of Research on K-12 Blended and Virtual Learning Through the iFlex Classroom Model focuses not only on how to design, deliver, and evaluate courses but also on how to assess teacher performance in a blended iFlex way at the K-12 level. The book will discuss the implementation of the iFlex iSquareFlex, a non-traditional learning methodology which integrates internet-based delivery of content and instruction with faculty-guided student-independent learning in combination with face-to-face classroom instruction, aiming at developing higher-order cognitive skills within a flexible learning design framework. While highlighting new methods for improving the classroom and learning experience in addition to preparing students for higher education and careers, this publication is an essential reference source for pre-service and in-service teachers, researchers, administrators, educational technology developers, and students interested in how the iFlex model was implemented in classrooms and the effects of this learning model.

International Handbook of Research on Environmental Education Robert B. Stevenson, Robert Stevenson, 2013. The environment and contested notions of sustainability are increasingly topics of public interest, political debate, and legislation across the world. Environmental education journals now publish research from a wide variety of methodological traditions that show linkages between the environment, health, development, and education. The growth in scholarship makes this an opportune time to review and synthesize the knowledge base of the environmental education (EE) field. The purpose of this 51-chapter handbook is not only to illuminate the most important concepts, findings, and theories that have been developed by EE research but also to critically examine the historical progression of the field, its current debates and controversies, what is still missing from the EE research agenda, and where that agenda might be headed. Published for the American Educational Research Association (AERA).

Mathematics (Education) in the Information Age Stacy A. Costa, Marcel Danesi, Dragana Martinovic, 2020-12-10. This book brings together ideas from experts in cognitive science, mathematics, and mathematics education to discuss these issues and to present research on how mathematics and its learning and teaching are evolving in the Information Age. Given the ever-broadening trends in Artificial Intelligence and the processing of information, generally, the aim is to assess their implications for how math is evolving and how math should now be taught to a generation that has been reared in the Information Age. It will also look at the ever-spreading assumption that human intelligence may not be unique, an idea that dovetails with current philosophies of mind such as posthumanism and transhumanism. The role of technology in human evolution has become critical in the contemporary world. Therefore, a subgoal of this book is to illuminate how humans now use their sophisticated technologies to chart cognitive and social progress Given the interdisciplinary nature of the chapters this will be of interest to all kinds of readers from mathematicians themselves working increasingly with computer scientists to cognitive scientists who carry out research on mathematics cognition and teachers of mathematics in a classroom

Storybridge to Second Language Literacy Irma-Kaarina Ghosn, 2013-09-01
Storybridge to Second Language Literacy makes a case for using authentic children's literature alternately also referred to as stories or real books as the medium of instruction in teaching English to young learners particularly in contexts where children must access general curriculum subjects in English The author first proposes theoretical foundations for the argument that illustrated children's books are superior to traditional language teaching courses in the primary school She builds the case around the motivational power of stories the language and content of quality children's literature and the potential of literature to contribute to development of second language academic literacy She then reviews research of the past thirty years that clearly supports her claim Finally she uses transcripts from real classrooms to illustrate how teachers in diverse contexts make use of stories Through the classroom vignettes a practical model of literature based instruction emerges that is adaptable to a wide range of primary school teaching contexts including English as a second language contexts in core English countries Storybridge to Second Language Literacy compiles in one volume solid theoretical foundations for story based instruction research evidence of the past thirty years supporting the approach not currently available in a single source and extensive classroom vignettes illustrating diverse practical applications not lesson plans This makes the book valuable for anyone in the field of young learner ELT MA students in TESOL will find the book useful and will develop an understanding of why and how literature based instruction works and develop insight to guide their practice Members of TESOL Elementary Education EFL and Bilingual Education SIGs and IATEFL Young Learner SIG will be interested in the volume Instructors of teacher development courses should also find the proposed volume a valuable addition to assigned readings Each chapter is followed by Think about it questions and Try it out suggestions

The Invention of Childhood Creativity Cat Martins, 2024-11-15 This text offers a comprehensive analysis of the concept of the modern creative and imaginative child in Western education Drawing on archived sources and historical works it reframes childhood creativity as a social cultural and scientific construction asking how our thinking and acting toward the creative child have been produced historically The text dissects the discursive construction of creativity as a natural and developmental attribute of the child It argues that the idea of the White creative child constructed through comparative reasoning shaped by primitivism and illustrated through botanical metaphors as close to nature and the senses is a notion embedded with colonialities forming part of a Western civilizing project and entrenched power knowledge relations A compelling and original account of childhood creativity this text will appeal to researchers in arts education early childhood education curriculum studies and the history of education
