Illusions in Motion Erkki Huhtamo, 2023-08-22 Tracing the cultural material and discursive history of an early manifestation of media culture in the making Beginning in the late eighteenth century huge circular panoramas presented their audiences with resplendent representations that ranged from historic battles to exotic locations Such panoramas were immersive but static There were other panoramas that moved hundreds and probably thousands of them Their history has been largely forgotten In Illusions in Motion Erkki Huhtamo excavates this neglected early manifestation of media culture in the making The moving panorama was a long painting that unscrolled behind a window by means of a mechanical cranking system accompanied by a lecture music and sometimes sound and light effects Showmen exhibited such panoramas in venues that ranged from opera houses to church halls creating a market for mediated realities in both city and country In the first history of this phenomenon Huhtamo analyzes the moving panorama in all its complexity investigating its relationship to other media and its role in the culture of its time In his telling the panorama becomes a window for observing media in operation Huhtamo explores such topics as cultural forms that anticipated the moving panorama theatrical panoramas the diorama the panoramania of the 1850s and the career of Albert Smith the most successful showman of that era competition with magic lantern shows the final flowering of the panorama in the late nineteenth century and the panorama s afterlife as a topos traced through its evocation in literature journalism science philosophy and propaganda handlers for each. It also covers advanced techniques such as dynamic content type negotiation, JAR based resource delivery and dynamic render kit selection.

Foreword Does the world really and truly need another JavaServer Faces book? I was fairly well convinced the answer could only be a resounding no. After all, there's a good half dozen books out in stores today by a whole host of web luminaries, and I've even personally helped as a technical reviewer on half of those. So what more could really be said on the subject? But when I thought about this a bit more, it became clear that all of these books only go so far. They'll show you how to use what JSF gives you out of the box, throw you a bone for writing your own components and renderers, maybe even a bit more. But none that I've seen get to the heart of why JSF is really and truly cool and important technology; they make JSF look like YAMVCF (Yet Another Model View Controller Framework for HTML), more powerful here and there, easier to use in many places, a bit harder to use in others, but really nothing major. And certainly nothing that takes us beyond the dull basics of building ordinary looking web applications. This book goes a lot further. It'll cover the basics of course and show you how to build components, but then it keeps going on to AJAX, on to HTC, on to XUL, and how you can wrap this alphabet soup up underneath the heart of JSF, its component model, and how you can leverage it to finally develop web applications that don't need radical re-architecting every time the winds of client technologies blow in a different direction. Along the way, you'll learn a wide array of open source toolkits that make web magic practical even when you're not a Javascript guru. So heck, I'm convinced. The world does need another JSF book.

From the Foreword Pioneer Churches along the Gold Rush Trail Liz Bryan, 2022-06-14

A fascinating tour through BC's historical gold rush trails focusing on the nineteenth century churches that were pivotal to the establishment of early settler communities. Much has been written about the Cariboo gold rush, from the trails and wagon roads to the rowdy mining camps, from tales of great luck to those of disappointment and despair. This book paints a different picture of those pioneer days. It is a guide to the nineteenth century churches that were built during the gold rush or in the settlement days that followed. Most of these historic structures were handmade of local wood, though they differed greatly in size and style. Some are now abandoned and untenanted but still worthy of inspection. All were built to fill the spiritual need of the European migrants who flooded to the area to nurture a sense of community that survived even after the gold was gone. Filled with beautiful colour photography and detailed maps, Pioneer Churches along the Gold Rush Trail highlights the history, geography, architecture, craftsmanship, and social context of dozens of gold rush era churches, preserving them in their varying states of decay for posterity. While acknowledging the destructive forces of colonialism, including Christianity on Indigenous Peoples, this book also examines the historical role of churches in community building and invites the reader to consider this dichotomy with an open and curious mind.

Innovation in Real Places Dan Breznitz, 2021-03-09 Winner of Balsillie Prize for Public Policy Winner of Donner Prize A challenge to prevailing ideas about innovation and a guide to identifying the best growth strategy for your community Across the world cities and regions have wasted trillions of dollars on blindly copying the Silicon Valley model of growth creation Since the early years of the information age we've been told that economic growth derives from harnessing technological innovation To do this places must create good education systems partner with local research universities and attract innovative hi tech firms We have lived with this system for decades and the result is clear a small number of regions and cities at the top of the high tech industry but many more fighting a losing battle to retain economic dynamism But are there other models that don't rely on a flourishing high tech industry In Innovation in Real Places Dan Breznitz argues that there are The purveyors of the dominant ideas on innovation have a feeble understanding of the big picture on global production and innovation They conflate innovation with invention and suffer from techno fetishism In their devotion to start ups they refuse to admit that the real obstacle to growth for most cities is the overwhelming power of the real hubs which siphon up vast amounts of talent and money Communities waste time money and energy pursuing this road to nowhere Breznitz proposes that communities instead focus on where they fit in the four stages in the global production process Some are at the highest end and that is where the Clevelands Sheffields and Baltimores are being pushed toward But that is bad advice Success lies in understanding the changed structure of the global system of production and then using those insights to enable communities to recognize their own advantages which in turn allows them to foster surprising forms of specialized innovation As he stresses all localities have certain advantages relative to at least one stage of the global production process and the trick is in recognizing it Leaders might think the answer lies in high tech or high end manufacturing but more often than not they're wrong Innovation in Real Places is an essential corrective to a mythology of innovation and growth that too many places have bought into in recent years Best of all it has the potential to prod local leaders into pursuing realistic and regionally appropriate models for growth and innovation
