

Passage BUsain Bolt

The Jamaican runner, Usain Bolt, is arguably the fastest man alive. His participation in the 2016 Olympic Games made history as he added the 400m title to 100m and 200m gold medals, becoming the first man to win all three events at three consecutive Olympic Games. Bolt first demonstrated his sprinting potential while in primary school. At the annual high school championships in 2001, he won his first medal, signalling the beginning of his athletics career. At the 2002 World Junior Championships, Bolt won the gold medal for the 200m race, proving his credentials on the world stage and becoming the youngest world-junior gold medalist ever.

He went on to take part in the 2004 Athens Olympics, but due to a leg injury, he was eliminated in the first round of the 200m. Trusting the strength of his performances, various American colleges offered Bolt track scholarships, but the Jamaican athlete turned them all down and chose to train at the primitive track the University of Technology in his homeland. At the 2005 World Championships in Helsinki, another injury prevented him from showing his outstanding abilities in major world events. Then came the 2008 Beijing Olympics where Bolt's record-setting runs amazed the world. Since then, he has made a legend of himself and is now one of the highest paid athletes in the world.
