Constructing Educational Achievement Sivan

Phillipson, Kelly Y.L. Ku, Shane N. Phillipson, 2014-06-03 International interest focuses on why pupils from East Asia tend to outperform pupils from the West and scholars have proposed a number of possible explanations to account for these international trends. Using Vygotsky's theory (1978) as a conceptual framework to construct school achievement, this book puts forward culturally relevant context for understanding developmental aspects of children's school achievement and their implication to classroom practice and education progress. Converging the two important lines of inquiry: the child factor and the sociocultural factor, this book showcases evidence-based scholarly works from across the globe that shed light on causes of academic achievement in different contexts. The book brings together eminent scholars from early childhood, primary education, secondary and vocational education who expertly capture the vitality of development and processes of specific child factors and their interaction with their environment that explain their school achievement. Foregrounded in the five planes of cultural, historical, institutional, social, personal and mental, the research explains how children think, learn and form the will to perform amidst the changing social and family environment and challenging school and educational environment.

Data Culture and the Organisation of Teachers' Work Nerida Spina, 2020-05-31 Data Culture and the Organisation of Teachers' Work provides an in-depth look at how the political and media scrutiny of teachers, pupils and schools now organises teaching and learning. Spina also examines how educational data is used in schools and where it fails to take account of the everyday experiences of school leaders, teachers and students. Drawing on primary research and discussing practice in relation to the National Assessment Programme: Literacy and Numeracy (NAPLAN), this book discusses the strengths and weaknesses of a data-driven approach, the restrictions this can impose and how to navigate them as a teacher. Ideal for scholars and postgraduate students of education, this book provides a comprehensive institutional ethnographic look into the daily lived experiences of teachers and the effects of standardised testing.
