Strand Writing

SOL 3.9

4.7

5.7

Materials

- Read-aloud text
- Personal narrative organizer (available on the Internet)
- Excerpts from text on index cards (for each student)
- Sample narrative
- Short list of personal narrative ideas
- Chart paper and markers
- Enlarged personal narrative graphic organizer

Lesson

1. Display the following characteristics of a personal narrative: about yourself, written in story format, and often chronological in order. Read a sample narrative to the class. Ask students to name a few of the interesting parts, and write them on a chart or board.
2. Ask students to imagine they are going to share an experience of their own with someone who did not participate in that experience. Have volunteers share their stories.
3. Ask the following questions:
 - Who is the story about?
 - How did you know what to tell first? Next? After that? Last?
 - What words indicate who was telling the story?
 - What kinds of words make your story more interesting? (Action verbs? Interesting nouns? Not too many adjectives?)
4. Explain to students that when they share a story about something that has happened to them, they are telling a personal narrative. Hand out the excerpts on index cards from the selected read-aloud or sample narrative. Have students read their excerpt and organize the text by posting the cards on the board, designated area, or electronic display. Point out that a story has a beginning (introduction), middle (body), and an end (conclusion). After students arrange their text, read them aloud. Ask students to identify the events and details in the story. Have students label the introduction, body, and conclusion.
5. Provide students with a copy of the sample narrative. Reread the selection in the correct order (introduction, body, and conclusion). Have students use information from the interactive activity to complete a personal narrative graphic organizer.
6. As a group, select a class experience to write about. Have students work in small groups to gather information about the chosen topic. Ask volunteers to share and record the information on chart paper.

rhetoical canon has caused a modern bias against delivery in writing theory many strategies that could aid in the teaching of writing have either been overlooked or undertheorized Therefore she borrows from current theoretical areas within and outside of writing in order to construct her own theory of delivery The last section provides practical applications of delivery in writing instruction Again borrowing from many sources inside and outside of composition she describes the techniques teachers may use to incorporate delivery in a writing classroom Through the use of delivery more strategies may be developed to aid in the teaching of writing Special features include the incorporation of some practices that had been in use in the composition classroom for many years but did not have any consciously theoretical grounding the discussion of women rhetoricians theories on delivery the combination of many contemporary theoretical areas including theatrical feminist rhetorical and pedagogical to form the author s redefined theory of delivery and the presentation of practical applications of this new theory of delivery for teachers to utilize in their own classrooms Teaching L2 Composition Dana R.

Ferris,John Hedgcock,2013-10 This popular comprehensive theory to practice text is designed to help teachers understand the task of writing L2 writers the different pedagogical models used in current composition teaching and reading writing connections Moving from general themes to specific pedagogical concerns it includes practice oriented chapters on the role of genre task construction course and lesson design writing assessment feedback error treatment and classroom language grammar vocabulary style instruction Although all topics are firmly grounded in relevant research a distinguishing feature of the text is the array of hands on practical examples materials and tasks that pre and in service teachers can use to develop the complex skills involved in teaching second language writing Each chapter includes Questions for Reflection Further Reading and Resources Reflection and Review and Application Activities An ideal text for L2 teacher preparation courses courses that include both L1 and L2 students and workshops for instructors of L2 writers in academic secondary and postsecondary settings the accessible synthesis of theory and research enables readers to see the relevance of the field s knowledge base to their own present or future classroom settings and student writers Resources in Education ,2001-10
