

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrine System: WORKING TOGETHER

Each organ system works on other systems within the body to do its "job". See below to learn just some of the ways that the endocrine system interacts with other organ systems.

Nervous System

Circulatory System

Endocrine System: FACTS

Endocrine System: PROBLEMS

Most of the time, the endocrine system works perfectly well. However, sometimes problems can arise.

Diabetes

Diabetes is a condition that causes high blood glucose (sugar) levels. It is caused by the body being unable to either produce or use the hormone insulin. So, the glucose (sugar) gets stuck in the blood. Symptoms include increased thirst, weight loss, blurred vision, frequent urination, weight changes, persistent sores, numbness or tingling in the hands.

Endocrine System: KEY TERMS

Term	Definition
Endocrine System	Network of endocrine glands that make, store, and release hormones.
Hormones	Chemical messengers that carry information and instructions from one cell to another.

Endocrine System: HORMONES

Hormones are chemical signals. Hormones are released into the bloodstream by endocrine glands. They travel through the bloodstream and bind to target cells, which then respond to the signal. Hormones can affect many different parts of the body. They can affect the way cells work, the way cells grow, and the way cells divide.

Endocrine System: FIGHT-OR-FLIGHT

The fight-or-flight response is a reaction that occurs in the body when you are really frightened. The body's fight-or-flight response is the body's way of reacting to a dangerous situation. When you feel scared, your body releases hormones that make you feel alert and ready to fight or flee. These hormones also make your heart beat faster and your breathing deeper. This helps you to react quickly to a dangerous situation.

So, when you are scared, your body releases hormones that make you feel alert and ready to fight or flee. These hormones also make your heart beat faster and your breathing deeper. This helps you to react quickly to a dangerous situation.

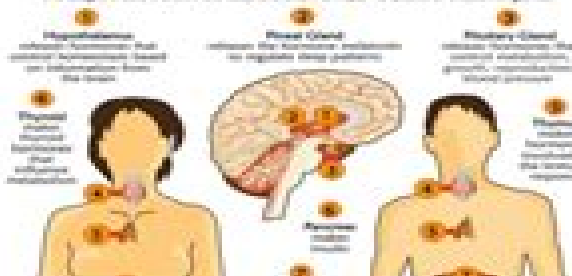

Endocrine System: FUNCTIONS

The endocrine system is a network of glands that produce hormones. Hormones are the body's chemical messengers that carry information and instructions from one cell to another. Hormones control many, many important processes in our bodies.

Function of the Endocrine System

Endocrine System: GLANDS

A gland is a structure that produces and releases substances that perform a specific function in the body. There are many different types of glands in the body. Some glands are endocrine glands, which release hormones into the bloodstream. Other glands are exocrine glands, which release substances into the body through a duct. Endocrine glands include the hypothalamus, pituitary gland, thyroid gland, parathyroid glands, adrenal glands, and the pancreas.

Endocrine System: FEEDBACK LOOPS

Endocrine activities are regulated by complex feedback loops. These feedback loops help the body maintain a stable internal environment. When a hormone level is too high or too low, the body releases a signal that tells the endocrine system to adjust the hormone level. This is called a feedback loop.

There are two main types of feedback loops: negative feedback loops and positive feedback loops. Negative feedback loops are the most common type of feedback loop. They help the body maintain a stable internal environment by releasing a signal that tells the endocrine system to stop releasing a hormone when the hormone level is too high.

Positive feedback loops are less common than negative feedback loops. They help the body maintain a stable internal environment by releasing a signal that tells the endocrine system to release more of a hormone when the hormone level is too low.
