Forgotten Fire A. Bagdasarian, 2002-04 For use in schools and libraries only Twelve year old Vahan Kenderian the son of an influential Armenian family in Turkey struggles to survive alone after witnessing the deaths of many of his family and friends during the Armenian massacres of the early twentieth century Forgotten Fire Adam Badasarian, 2009-07-01 Drawing on his own great uncle s experiences Bagdasarian covers the years 1915 1918 when a boy from a wealthy well respected family from Bitlis Turkey is stripped of everything simply because he is Armenian Publishers Weekly Forgotten Fire Adam Bagdasarian, 2000 Based on a true story this historical novel tells about the Turkish genocide of the Armenians Vahan Kenderian age 12 when his home is torn apart sees many of his family and friends butchered before his eyes Booklist Bagdasarian has created a story that is a tribute to the human ability to endure Because of the sexual and physical violence this book is recommended for mature readers Outstanding Books for the College Bound Angela Carstensen, 2011-05-27 More than simply a vital collection development tool this book can help librarians help young adults grow into the kind of independent readers and thinkers who will flourish at college Genocide in Rwanda: Clarinda Rae Solberg, 2012-04-02 While very little attention has been paid to the possibility of another genocide in Rwanda prior genocide is an important risk factor for recurrence Yet a lack of in depth quantitative and qualitative analysis on this likelihood is leaving a gaping hole in the field of genocide prevention Scholars and non governmental organizations have failed to provide a full scale scrutiny of today s Rwanda while at the same time admitting it is a country at risk for possible large scale conflict and criticizing the international community s failure to act in 1994 This research fills a significant hole in the current literature by analyzing the existing conditions for conflict recurrence in Rwanda using two never before contrasted early warning models and placing them side by side for a more complete risk assessment profile For this research I employ the use of Barbara Harff s 2003 Risk Assessment Model as promoted by the United Nations in early genocide detection as well as the Sentinel Project s genocide risk factors list My research asks utilizing these two early warning models for genocide in Rwanda had the possibility for genocide changed over the course of the last eighteen years has Rwanda stabilized or is the possibility of genocide recurrence still present This examination into Rwanda s present also has implications for what steps the international community could take in order to prevent future tragedies Common Core State Standards for Grade 6 Michelle Manville, 2014-05-21 Common Core State Standards for Grade 6 Language Arts Instructional Strategies and Activities is designed to help teachers address Common Core standards using research based effective instructional strategies in combination with ready to use activities These strategies include identifying similarities and differences writing summaries and taking notes creating non linguistic representations and suggestions for homework and practice There are a variety of suggested texts as well as identified text exemplars that can easily be used with the strategies and activities

Second-Generation Memory and Contemporary Children's Literature Anastasia Ulanowicz, 2013-09-02 Winner of the Children's Literature Association Book Award This book visits a range of textual forms including diary novel and picturebook to explore the relationship between second generation memory and contemporary children's literature Ulanowicz argues that second generation memory informed by intimate family relationships textual mediation and technology is characterized by vicarious rather than direct experience of the past As such children's literature is particularly well suited to the representation of second generation memory insofar as children's fiction is particularly invested in the transmission and reproduction of cultural memory and its form promotes the formation of various complex intergenerational relationships Further children's books that depict second generation memory have the potential to challenge conventional Western notions of selfhood and ethics This study shows how novels such as Lois Lowry's The Giver 1993 and Judy Blume's Starring Sally J. Freedman as Herself 1977 both of which feature protagonists who adapt their elders' memories into their own mnemonic repertoires implicitly reject Cartesian notions of the unified subject in favor of a view of identity as always already social relational and dynamic in character This book not only questions how and why second generation memory is represented in books for young people but whether such representations of memory might be considered radical or conservative Together these analyses address a topic that has not been explored fully within the fields of children's literature trauma and memory studies and Holocaust studies
