Mathematics, 1998 Exploring Symbols Gail Burrill, Miriam Clifford, Richard L. Scheaffer, 1998 Public Policy to Reduce Inequalities across Europe Paul Cairney, Michael Keating, Sean Kippin, Emily St Denny, 2022-07-28 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence. It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations. There is a broad consensus across European states and the EU that social and economic inequality is a problem that needs to be addressed. Yet inequality policy is notoriously complex and contested. This book approaches the issue from two linked perspectives. First, a focus on functional requirements highlights what policymakers think they need to deliver policy successfully and the gap between their requirements and reality. We identify this gap in relation to the theory and practice of policy learning and to multiple sectors to show how it manifests in health, education and gender equity policies. Second, a focus on territorial politics highlights how the problem is interpreted at different scales, subject to competing demands to take responsibility. This contestation and spread of responsibilities contributes to different policy approaches across spatial scales. We conclude that governments promote many separate equity initiatives across territories and sectors without knowing if they are complementary or contradictory. This outcome could reflect the fact that ambiguous policy problems and complex policymaking processes are beyond the full knowledge or control of governments. It could also be part of a strategy to make a rhetorically radical case while knowing that they will translate into safer policies. It allows them to replace debates on values regarding whose definition of equity matters and which inequalities to tolerate with more technical discussions of policy processes. Governments may be offering new perspectives on spatial justice or new ways to reduce political attention to inequalities.

Acharya, Stephen Christopher, 2022-03-01. This book explores how social discrimination in South Asia contributes to health disparities and impedes well-being. Specifically, it addresses how marginalization shapes health outcomes both under normal circumstances and specifically during the COVID-19 pandemic. Coming from diverse backgrounds and representing different academic disciplines, the authors have contributed a range of chapters drawing from quantitative and ethnographic material across South Asia. Chapters address reservation politics, tribal lifeways, Dalit exclusions from governmental institutions, Muslim ghettoization, gendered domestic violence, social determinants of health among migrant workers, and the pandemic fallout across South Asian society among other subjects. Scholars draw on decades of experience and firsthand ethnographic fieldwork among affected communities The chapters provide an innovative analysis often in real time of the human toll of casteism classism patriarchy and religious intolerance many set against the spectre of COVID 19 Many authors not only present social critiques but also offer specific policy recommendations The book is of great interest to social scientists public health practitioners and policy advocates interested in addressing systemic inequalities and ensuring that future pandemics are not disproportionately felt by the most vulnerable ENC Focus ,1994
